JUDGE ORDERS LEWIS TRIED FOR CONTEMPT

Planes Take Twelve From Alpine Trap

Swiss Officers Flying Ski-Equipped Craft Carry Americans To Safety From Snow Perch On Glacier.

INTERLAKEN, Switzerland—(AP)—Twelve Americans who survived five days on an Alpine glacier 12,000 feet above sea level were safe on a United States army hospital train en route to Vienna today, rescued from their plight by the same route they got into it—through the air.

Swiss army officers in ski-equipped, three-place Fieseler Storch planes brought them and their baggage out yesterday in nine shuttle flights over the 10 miles between the airport at Meiringen, some 15 miles east of Interlaken, and their snowy perch on Guali glacier. The 12—and 11-year-old girl, four women, four army officers, two non-commissioned officers and a male civilian—had been in a sheltered hole in the glacier, 13 miles southeast of Interlaken, since the crash landing last Tuesday of a U. S. army C-53 Dakota transport plane enroute from Vienna to Pisa by way of Munich.

They had lived on box lunches for three days and after those gave out, on candy bars they had purchased at the Munich post exchange and doled out one a day to each. They drank snow melted over fires of gasoline, oil and parts of the plane, and had slept on blankets and the transport's seats and upholstery. Swiss mountain guides reported a three-foot snowfall had converted the cabin of the slightly damaged plane into a cozy "igloo" for them.

Not till Friday was the wreck located. Metal in the mountains deflected radio beams sent from the stricken plane and receiving operators got the impression it was 80 miles south of here.

Later, however, a correct "fix" on the position was obtained, and British and U. S. planes among the more than 100 searching spotted the group. Saturday 70 Swiss civilian and soldier mountain climbers in eight hours struggled from Meiringen out to the plane survivors, carrying litters.

Land Tiny Planes.

Before the rescue party essayed the even more tortuous descent to safety, Maj. Pisa Hitz and Capt. Victor Hug of the Swiss army landed their tiny planes on the glacier and began the rescue by air.

They found the group spread out for 1,000 feet between the glacier's rim and the wreckage, and they took the nearest off first.

Taking turns and bringing in two survivors at a time, they landed on the ice with ski runners and, back at the airport, dropped these to come in on wheels. They had perfect flying weather.

Staff Sgt. Wayne C. Folsom of Postville, Ia., the crew chief, was the only stretcher case among the 12. He had frostbite, a knee injury and foot bruises.

Three in the rescued group were greeted by relatives at the airport. Mrs. Ralph Tate, sr., and Capt. Ralph Tate, jr, the transport's pilot, were met by Brig. Gen. Ralph Tate, sr., deputy U. S commander in Austria, who congratulated his son on a "remarkable job" in landing the plane

Landlords On Strike In Dallas

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

DALLAS, Tex.—(AP)—In this crowded Texas city, where classified columns daily plead the urgent need of housing, hundreds of rooms, apartments and residences are empty. Landlords are striking for abolishment of the OPA.

Mrs. Frank Morris, 55-year-old Dallas clubwoman, president of the statewide landlords incorporated and the local property owners and associates, is leading the militant drive against the government agency.

"This is a quiet strike," she said. "Mostly, there have been no evictions. When tenants move out, doors are locked and stay that way. At least 3,000 Dallas housing units now are being withheld. The landlords aren't fooling."

Mrs. Morris owns no rental property but feels rent control is "undemocratic, unconstitutional and is cheating homecoming veterans out of a place to live." Her only son, a radio operator, was lost in a B-17 raid over Germany.

Woman Takes Lead.

"I am fighting the OPA," she explained, "because I want this country to be worthy of his sacrifice."

Wearing a fuchsia dress and pancake hat of similar hue, Mrs. Morris guided me on a tour that took in dozens of ghost apartments and houses—places marked by untended yards and drawn shades.

We called on Joe H. Blann, totally disabled by heart trouble as a result of German shellfire in the first World war. He said he had sold a duplex and a triplex because of burdensome controls and that a five-room rent-cottage would stay empty until "the government restores property to landlords."

He lay abed in his own unit of his otherwise empty apartment house which, until last March, accommodated 18 other tenants. Last February he got into a price squabble with OPA and the agency obtained a $289 federal court judgment against him.

Landlords Incorpated, organized only two weeks ago, already has affiliated organizations in other Texas cities, including Houston, San Antonio, Palestine, San Angelo, Fort Worth, Galveston, Mpnahans, Vernon, Corpus Christi and Waco.

EX-PREMIER BLAMES SELF FOR GEM LOSS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—(U.P.)—His excellency Nai Pridi Banomyong, who resigned as premier of Siam two months after the king was shot to death, and Mme. Banomyong blamed their own carelessness today for the loss of $30,000 worth of jewelry from an unlocked cottage at the Beverly Hills hotel.

Pridi served as premier of Siam during a stormy six months period last summer. While he was in office, Siam's 20-year-old King Ananda was shot to death. Pridi was the object of sharp criticism in connection with the incident, which officially was announced as an accident.

A month later—on July 18—he announced that he had discovered a plot to overthrow the government. On Aug. 22 he resigned.

Visitors Find Transit Tour Maze Amazing

NEW YORK—(INS)—Sixty eight transit inspectors, who should have known better, rode into Brooklyn on a trolley car inspection tour. After a bewildering experience traveling in circles they all agreed today that "everything you hear about Brooklyn is true."

Riding in one of the city's newest trolleys, the inspectors got lost while attempting to find their way "out of the wilderness of Brooklyn."

For an hour of befuddled confusion, they threw the city's trolley schedules out of schedule, and tied up traffic in various parts of the Fair Boro as they switched from track to track, trying to find their way out of the maze of streets.

Finally, in disgust, the inspectors deserted the trolley and took the subway home.

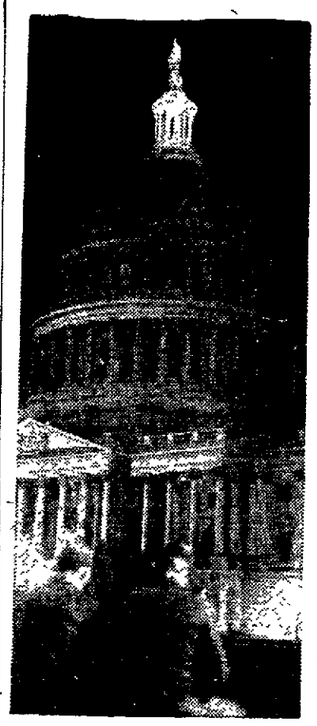
Klett told police that as he was locking his car, a robber placed a gunny sack over his head, took $250 from his pockets, and ran away without saying a word. The victim wasn't even left holding the sack—the robber took that, too.

PILOT FATALLY HURT

PENSACOLA, Fla. —(AP)— Ensign Bradford Dale Miller of West Jefferson, O., was injured fatally in a plane crash Saturday near Choctaw Field, the navy public information office reported last night.



WAR-TIME DAYS are recalled in Washington as the Capitol dome blacks out again to conserve fuel during strike. (International News Service).

City to Be Darkened Today In Fuel Crisis

Mansfield's downtown section will go back to those dark days of the war period tonight when outside advertising, show windows, and theater marquees are "browned out" to save electric power in the face of the mounting coal crisis.

With continuance of the soft coal strike until at least Wednesday virtually assured by the setting of that day as the date when John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' chieftain, faces trial on contempt charges, Mansfield prepared to make the best of the man-made emergency.

Joy H. Herbert, district manager of the Ohio Public Service company, said the company will execute the brownout order at p. m. today, and that the government's order would be fulfilled "as rapidly as possible."

"The merchants here will cooperate fully, as they have in the past," he said. "We've got men on the job now disconnecting lighting display timeclocks."

Turn Off Signs.

He explained that many show window lights, electric signs and storefront displays were operated by time switches, and that in some instances the merchants themselves could not turn them off, but required the services of OPS electricians.

V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association, said he still had not received any official orders from the government, but indicated that he expected all merchants "to cooperate."

He said the merchants were to hold a special meeting sometime today to consider necessary action. In any case, he said, merchants voluntarily would accept the fuel conservation order.

At the same time, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn called on domestic, industrial and commercial users of power to "stand ready to meet the emergency."

"I have no official order or directive as to the 'brownout' or coal conservation plans," the mayor said. "For the immediate pres-

Lawyers Fail To Win Delay In Coal Case

Trial Set Wednesday With Prospect of Long Arguments While Nation's Fuel Supply Dwindles Rapidly.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Asserting today that John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers "undertook to decide the law for themselves," Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough ordered them to trial Wednesday for contempt in the soft coal shutdown.

Lewis, through his attorneys, denied his guilt and challenged the judge's right to issue the restraining order which the government charges he unlawfully ignored.

The trial probably will run into next week while industrial paralysis tightens from the diminishing coal supply.

Welly K. Hopkins, counsel for Lewis and the union, sought a delay to permit Joseph A. Padway, general council of the AFL, to join in the defense but Goldsborough refused the request, commenting that the "public interest" requires as speedy a settlement as possible in view of the mine walkout already in its fifth day.

Speaking in low tones, Goldsborough expressed hope that labor unions would not "do something that might influence congress" to pass legislation which might "set the labor movement back for years."

"I don't know whether I was justified in making that statement," he commented afterwards. "It was extra-judicial."

White House Silent.

The White House meanwhile maintained silence. Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters there was "nothing" there on the coal situation.

To questions whether there is any movement under way to bring Republican leaders to the White House to talk over the coal crisis, Ross replied with "no comment."

Goldsborough set Wednesday's trial after ruling that Lewis had not purged himself of the contempt charges directed against him Nov. 21 for failure to withdraw a no-contract notice to the government. It was Lewis' cancellation of the work agreement

Barnyard At Church Aids Poor

WILMINGTON, Del.—(AP)—The parking lot of the Christ Episcopal church in suburban Christiana will become a veritable farmyard and pig pen Thanksgiving day.

In a spirit of giving patterned after the Biblical days, parishioners of the fashionable church—where most of the wealthy DuPont family worship and get married—will bring live animals, canned goods, clothing and furniture, as gifts to the poor.

Farmer members of the congregation are to bring steers, sheep, pigs, turkeys, ducks or chickens—tethering the animals at troughs set up on the parking lot. Other church members will contribute canned fruits and vegetables, clothes and layettes which will be displayed in booths.

The Rev. Dr. William C. Munds, pastor, says all the gifts will be distributed—on a non-sectarian basis—to needy persons in the area served by the church.

"The church is in a farming district and the past year has been a very good one," Dr. Munds declared. "It will be a non-sectarian proposition, since Thanksgiving day is not alone a Protestant day, a Jewish day or a Catholic day."

The pastor explained that "while so far only one parish has contributed, everybody is invited to join the festivities," adding he hoped it would become an annual affair.

Imitates Bible Custom.

The idea of imitating the Biblical custom was conceived by a recently-discharged army major, Dr. Munds said.

"Robert Down, a gentleman farmer of Wilmington, came to me with the suggestion that here was a chance to thank God for sparing us the ravages of war-torn Europe," Dr. Munds declared.

"We hope to give the perishable goods to needy families and institutions and such items as household furniture to returned GI's setting up new homes.

"I would like to see our parishioners cultivate some product for an entire year just to present it at our Thanksgiving offering. The product—whether it be an animal or a perishable crop—should be the best," Dr. Munds said.

$700,000 PARKS AND HIGHWAY PROGRAM SET UP FOR MUSKINGUM DISTRICT LAKES

Self-Supporting Project Would Provide Park Area For Pleasant Hill.

The long-awaited plans for a $700,000 public parks and recreational program for the Muskingum Conservancy lakes, including Pleasant Hill and Charles Mill lakes east of Mansfield, will be submitted to the Conservancy court in New Philadelphia Wednesday.

Richland County Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, one of the 18 common pleas judges comprising the policy making body of the district, said "If the plans, prepared by the districts engineers are approved Wednesday the court then will turn to the problem of financing the project.

Initial plans call for expenditures of approximately $100,000 on public highways to and through the parks and about $600,000 on a long list of parks and recreation facilities, many of them within easy reach of Mansfielders.

Public Park Planned

Designed to be self-supporting and self-liquidating from revenues expected to be derived from operation of the parks, the project provides that the Pleasant Hill lake will be the site for one of the three main parks. Some 300 acres there, with room for future expansion, are to be developed.

Charles Mill lake will be the site for a public inn, containing a lounge and facilities for serving meals, with small "fisherman's cabins" in connection with a boat livery.

As outlined by the district's engineers Pleasant Hill lake will be provided with:

Vacation cabins with cooking facilities for weekly rental.

Lodging cabins without cooking facilities for rent.

Bathing beaches, boating and fishing docks and facilities, (both public and private), permanent concession stands, main park headquarters buildings, picnic areas, shelters, an inn or lodge, main access and park roads, an area water supply system, toilet and sanitary facilities including a central disposal plant and parking areas.

In addition, areas will be provided for long-term lease to private individuals for the construction of cottages and club buildings.

Park on North Shore.

The Pleasant Hill park is planned for the northern shore of the lake, the bulk of it to be in Richland county.

LAW OUTLAWING STRIKES ASKED

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) proposed today that congress outlaw strikes and compel arbitration of labor disputes in basic industries such as coal mining directly affecting the general welfare of the country.

Such machinery could be made applicable to future coal work stoppages if not the present walkout, Fulbright told a reporter. He said it might be applied also to enterprises such as oil, steel, transportation and public utilities.

His idea, Fulbright explained, would be to ban strikes altogether in these industries and force arbitration of disputes either through a new agency set up on the pattern of the Interstate Commerce Commission or through a special court, or both.

He added that the government might have to exercise regulatory powers over the industries, just as it now does over some utilities, and might have to control prices of the industries' products in order to adjust wage disputes equitably.

The Arkansas senator's suggestion came amid indications that the president was thinking of calling legislative leaders of both parties into conference about possible ways and means of ending the coal walkout if developments point to a prolonged mine shutdown.

BOARD STUDIES OSR PROBLEMS

Organized to acquaint the public with institutional problems at Mansfield reformatory and to foster support of improvements through legislation and publicity, the new Ohio Probation and Parole association's advisory committee met today for the first time at the reformatory.

Members of the committee, all representatives of the press, include Joseph Garretson of the Cincinnati Enquirer, James Keenan of the Columbus Citizen and Mrs. Shirley Kloth of the Cleveland Press.

Judge J. H. Lamneck of Philadelphia, second vice president of the association and chairman of the meeting, was scheduled to open the session which included classification of population at OSR, problems of physical facilities, number paroled from the institution from 1940 to 1946 and the number returned each year as parole violators.

Speakers were Frederick A. Breyer of Cincinnati, president of the association; Dr. J. V. Horst, OSR physician; Charles L. Sherwood, chairman of the Ohio Pardon and Parole commission, and G. R. Klopfenstein of Columbus, first vice president of the association.

SCHOOLS CLOSE IN TWO CITIES

(By United Press)

Labor disputes struck at the nation's public schools today, idling 86,000 students.

A teachers' strike shut down all publis schools at St. Paul. All Denver schools—public and parochial—were closed as an indirect result of the coal strike.

St. Paul teachers struck for higher wages and improved schooling facilities. Officials at Denver said there was not enough coal to keep the city schools heated. They planned to broadcast classes by radio to Denver's 56,000 students.

At St. Paul teachers began picketing the schools to explain why school was out to any of the 36,000 grade and high school students who might appear for classes. The strike was well publicized after negotiations broke off Saturday, however, and few students were expected to show up for classes.

In other labor developments:

1—Another teachers' strike which would have idled 70,000 more students was postponed at Minneapolis, when AFL Federation negotiators reached a last-minute settlement boosting wages; teachers returned to classes pending a vote on the agreement which would not go into effect until Jan. 1948.

2—Milwaukee employers with CIO contracts were asked to close their firms temporarily to furnish the United Auto Workers with pickets for a mass demonstration in the seven-month's Allis-Chalmers farm equipment strike.

3—Ships were loading and sailing from the west coast, marking the end of a maritime strike which had tied up shipping almost continuousyy since Sept. 4.

SEASON'S FIRST SNOW IN SIGHT

The mercury was heading for another toboggan ride in Ohio today and as a result, Mansfielders may see their first snow of the season by tomorrow morning.

Meanwhile, the mercury stood at 48 degrees at noon while warm and humid temperatures were reported throughout the state accompanied by a light drizzle. Yesterday's high of 57, and this morning's low was 49.

Weather bureau forecasters said that another cold air mass was moving into the state and that by late tonight temperatures would skid back to the low 20's.

Lowest mark is expected to be reached tomorrow night, with indications that a flux of warm air from the south will temper the weather by Wednesday.

NAIL WOUND FATAL

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Tetanus resulting from a wound inflicted by a rusty nail thrown by a playmate was fatal yesterday to Robert Foley, 13.

300 Mansfielders Still Wait for 'Phone Service

Fifteen months after the surrender of Japan, the Mansfield Telephone company has back orders for 300 telephones, Milo W. Hieber, commercial supervisor of the company, disclosed today.

He gave three reasons: lack of central office equipment, an insufficient supply of cable and a shortage of instruments.

"Our central office equipment is already overloaded and it is impossible to get either new parts or new apparatus," he explained.

In an effort to lighten the burden of the central office for outlying districts, orders have been placed for equipment for a new exchange in Roseland. It will be located back of the Roseland grocery and will be one of the sub-exchanges similar to that in Woodland.

"Work on this new exchange," Hieber said, "will probably be started next spring."

Hieber picked up a piece of broken cable and from it pulled two copper wires.

"Now take these two wires, for instance," he said. "If these two wires connect an eight-party line and there are already eight telephones installed from this particular pair, then not one more telephone can be placed on that circuit, regardless of how much you may wish.

"If a pair of wires connect a four-party line, then four telephones are all that we can put on that pair."

Delivery Date Uncertain.

"Incidentally," he said, "we have 150,000 feet of cable on order and no definite delivery date can ze had."

"We have 4,000 more telephones now than we had in 1941," L. R. Wittemire, general manager, declared. "As of Oct. 31, we had 19,500 telephones in use in Mansfield and suburban areas. So far this year, we have gained 972 subscribers."

He listed four groups of potential subscribers on the waiting list—residents of new areas, such as the Millsboro addition; suburban residents, business offices and subscribers desiring extensions in business places and homes.

These 300 back orders are a part of 2,500,000 orders throughout the country which are not being fulfilled, Wittemire said, adding that "the demand for telephones is seven times what it was before the war."

123 Ohio Amputees Get Special Cars

COLUMBUS —(INS) Disabled Ohio veterans have received 123 automobiles under the "autos for amputees" program.

The veterans administration branch office in Columbus reported today that it certified payment of $195,775 for the vehicles, an average of $1,592 each. The VA added that 764 disabled vets have filed applications for autos or other conveyances, and of this number 611 already have been certified as eligible.

COMMUNISTS HOLD EDGE IN FRANCE

PARIS —(INS)— Complete returns from metropolitan France, except for Corsica, gave the Communists a slight margin over the popular Republican movement today in the vote for the council of the republic.

The Communists, who won the largest number of seats in the vote for the National Assembly two weeks ago, obtained 24,291 electors. Candidates running on affiliated lists gave them 253 more.

The popular Republicans, who finished second in the assembly election, had 24,151.

Winchell — On Broadway

THIS REPORTER believes in free trade-unionism, not only as a means of collective bargaining, but as a strong buttress against fascism in this and any other country. If many warm letters from labor unions and working people now in my files are any evidence, this reporter has ample reasons for believing that he is regarded as a friend of labor. It is as a friend of labor that this is written.

Trade unionism and party-line Communism are not only two different things; they are mortal enemies . . . The so-called Murray resolution, supposedly against Communism, at the CIO convention is nothing of the kind. It, along with Mr. Murray's statements which accompanied it, is virtually a charter for continued Communist operation within the CIO . . . What the CIO does within its own membership is one thing. What it labels for consumption of the American people is another. This is to debunk the resolution for the spurious and fraudulent document it is.

In the first place, of the six-man committee that drafted the resolution, two religiously follow the Communist party line, and one is an open member of the National Committee of the Communist party . . . Under these circumstances, Mr. Murray, is it surprising to you that your resolution was hailed by the Daily Worker? As were you personally? Do you think the Daily Worker would praise you if you were really attacking the Communists?

PERHAPS you have missed, Mr. Murray, the following article. It was written after Stalin's speech in Komsomolskaya Pravda for Russia's Communist Youth organization. Said that Russian publication: "You may think that, as the exploiting classes have been destroyed and no one in the country needs to be suppressed, there is no further need for a dictatorship of the working classes. But this dictatorship has other tasks besides the suppression of the exploiting classes. Stalin has indicated the three main aspects of a working class dictatorship: 'Use the power of the proletariat to suppress the exploiting class, for the country's defense, to form lasting ties with the proletariat of other countries and for the development and victory of the revolution in all countries'" . . . It is a fair inference that the Communists in the U. S. and CIO are working toward that end. What are you going to do about it, Mr. Murray?

In my opinion, you are not putting the lid on a family quarrel, Mr. Murray. You are tamping home an explosive, the force of which may seriously damage free trade-unionism . . . What makes this resolution ridiculous is that every informed person knows the facts . . . What makes it sad is that even your admirers are saying that you have compromised your principles . . . What makes it dangerous is that you are imperiling free trade-unionism—the first—and maybe the last—stronghold of world democracy!

Surely you know that every bigot, reactionary, Nazi and Fascist, native born and foreign, in these United States is waiting for a chance to crush democracy under the guise of protecting the nation. They are praying for an American "Reichstag Fire."

Why provide them with the fuel?

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt disagrees with Mrs. Julius V. Talmadge, the president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who disagrees with President Truman's proposal that the United States permit the entry of a greater number of "displaced persons" from refuge camps.

The D. A. R. is an intensely patriotic and nationalistic organization which has suffered considerable derision for its strict loyalty to the United States with no second choice. Its members have been depicted as a high-busted group of serio-comic, middle-aged-to-elderly she-Rotarians who concern themselves with flower arrangements of cat-tails and milkweed pods, listen to lectures and regard communism as legalized rapery, as why shouldn't they?

These girls are as they are and, weight for age, no less toothsome than the dames who lambaste them, no fatter or scrawnier, no less intelligent or courageous in their convictions and second to no other group in their unconditional American patriotism. I thought I would mention these matters by way of establishing their right to their opinion on immigration or anything else, subject to no discount on the score of looks or their preoccupation with low-priority interests while, as it were, Rome burns.

After all, it wasn't Mrs. Talmadge who brought a personal protegee to Washington on public salary to divert the masses from bombs bursting in air by teaching ballroom versions of "Turkey in the Straw" touched up with squirms of Hollywood kootch; or, touching on the subject of manners, who served pink lemonade, spiked with square-face, to the British prime minister, knowing him to be a brandy man.

COMING NOW to the matter of the admittance of more "displaced persons," I am in a position to say that our present immigration laws and policy are so leaky, complex and confused that the only desirable persons who are really excluded are good Germans who had to submit to the Nazi regime for the same reason that millions of Americans had to accept the domination and discipline of Mrs. Roosevelt's friends of the CIO—to wit, in order to live.

We have been letting aliens into New York alone at the rate of 15,000 a month, when native Americans can't find living quarters, as Franklin, jr., has been bellowing through the political loud-speakers of the American Veterans' committee, and at a time when a native American never knows whether Mrs. Roosevelt's political comrades will let him earn a day's pay or make him pack a placard, throw bricks at the cops and put in for relief to feed his family.

A few days ago, after a class of 284 European displaced persons had been sworn in by a district judge, ten of them, described by an attache of the court as "bejeweled and befurred" types, which abound in expensive hotels and apartments along Park and Fifth avenues and in the region of Central Park, inquired before they left the building whether they could now get passports and go back to Europe immediately as American citizens.

The fact is plain that the selection of the lucky ones who receive visas permitting them to come here is up to the American consular employes in Europe, who are slaves of bureaucratic humdrum and not too well paid and, presumably, no more likely to spurn graft than others more highly placed in the political party which sent them abroad.

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Hell hath no fury like that of a congressman with cold feet.

That's old Confucius Othman speaking for the benefit of John L. Lewis and his striking coal miners.

There's increasing talk of calling congress back in a hurry to pass a law. Even if this does not happen, the regular congress meets on Jan. 3. If the coal miners still are twiddling thumbs, and Lewis and the government still are making faces at each other, those lawmakers are going to have cold hearts. They'll be cold all over.

Architect David Lynn of the capitol reports that the crisis is upon him. He's plunged the dome into nightly gloom and he's going easy on the steam. The coal bin of the steam plant that keeps congressmen comfortable is nearly empty. Two more weeks of the strike and the capitol will be as cold as the eye of a Republican looking over a Democratic job holder.

That's only one of the crises John L. has brought on. Soon it will be President Truman's job to push the button that lights the nation's Christmas tree in Lafayette Square. Only nothing will happen. Christmas tree lights are against the rules so long as the coal strike lasts. The long arm of the Civilian Production Administration reaches inside the White House itself. There'll be no light on the president's private tree.

As for Lewis himself, he's threatened with chilblains. You may have noticed the sorry state of the woodpile behind his house in those photographs printed over the week-end. That's not all. When he bought his handsome white house on Washington street in Alexandria, Va., it was equipped with an oil burner.

This, obviously, would not do.

John L. averted his eyes while it was being ripped out. In his cellar today is a fine, big furnace which uses egg-size coal. That is as it should be. After all, a fellow ought to patronize his friends. Only his friends are out coon hunting. They aren't digging coal and the man with the eyebrows has hardly half a bin left.

Contempt of court proceedings and other legal abracadabra too complicated for me may eventually send Lewis to jail. The holes in the ancient Washington brick sieve, I am assured, have been plugged. A can-opener will do John no good.

This jail-house, which footpads, purse-snatchers and murderers have unlocked in the past with silver spoons, keys from old sardine cans and bent hair-pins, unfortunately cannot assure the mine chief a warm welcome.

The floors of the bastille are cold and likely to grow colder. Here, too, the coal pile is dwindling. The fireman has thrown away his shovel. He's using a soup spoon now, but he's got his eye on his wife's eyebrow tweezers. He's got to make his coal last as long as possible, no matter how uncomfortable his prisoners.

But let us get back (with our overcoat collars turned up) to congress. The capitol is full of fireplaces. You'd think they'd keep the lawmakers snug in this emergency. But no. Architect Lynn says they must make the situation worse, psychologically speaking.

The durn things won't burn anything but coal.

FOUR INJURED IN ACCIDENTS IN CITY AREA

Clevelanders Among Persons Hurt in Mishaps.

Four persons suffered minor injuries in three traffic accidents in the Mansfield area over the week-end, police and state highway patrolmen reported today.

Two Cleveland residents were treated in General hospital and released after they received minor injuries in an accident on U. S. Route 30-N near Belmont avenue yesterday afternoon.

Injured were Margaret Kennedy, 62, and Rebecca Moyse, 65, both of Cleveland. The highway patrol said a car driven by Elsie E. Kennedy, of Cleveland, was in collision with an automobile driven by Clyde Bowser, Mansfield R. D. 3. The Cleveland car was heavily damaged.

Richard W. Taylor, of Galion, faced a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol following a collision with a truck at 4 a. m. Sunday on U. S. Route 30-S near Ontario, the highway patrol said.

Taylor received a cut lip when the car he was driving was in collision with a truck driven by Fred Sims, of Marion.

Richard W. Taylor, Mansfield R. D. 2, who is not related to the Richard W. Taylor of Galion, suffered minor injuries late last night when the motorcycle which he was operating struck the rear of a parked car owned by Roy Wilkins, Mansfield, R. D. 4.

In municipal court today, Taylor pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol and was fined $300 and costs, $200 of which was suspended on condition he pays for the damage to Sims' truck. His license was suspended for six months.

4-H Members Urged To Join Guernsey Club

A meeting of all Richland county 4-H club members or those between 12 and 20 who intend to join 4-H clubs, will be held Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Liberty Park pavilion to organize a Richland county Guernsey Calf club.

The meeting, to be sponsored by the Richland County Guernsey Breeders association, has been planned primarily for all those 4-H club members and potential members who are interested in raising pure-bred Guernsey calves. The meeting will be addressed by Robert Bishop of Wooster, field secretary of the Ohio Guernsey Breeders association.

Co-incident with the organization of the club, it is also planned to schedule five future meetings for the young members. Three of these meetings will have to do with the feeding of Guernsey calves, fitting them for showing and details of the actual showing procedure.

The sponsoring association has also announced that it will conduct a purchase tour of herds in January and that prizes for the two best calves and the two best heifers will be given. First prize, the association has announced, will be a free trip to the Ohio State Fair next summer.

THEY LIKE MANSFIELD—

A University of Chicago professor and his wife have a warm spot in their hearts for certain Mansfield park crewmen—and so does their five-year-old son. In a letter to Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, the professor tells how he and his family were in Mansfield during September, stopping here to have their auto repaired. While waiting for the auto they watched workers who were cutting down a tree at Central park.

Well, the five-year-old, "more of a nuisance than a help, devoted himself to carrying branches and loading them on a truck," the professor writes. When the job was completed one of the workmen gave the boy a dime for his "labors," the professor says, adding, "I've never seen the boy more pleased with anything." Remarking about the crewmen's kindness, the professor, Dan H. Cooper, of the university's department of education, said "my wife and I had mighty good feelings about it."

SHOWDOWNS NEARING ON MAIN ISSUES

U. S. Sides With Britain on Troop Inventories After Compromise Fails.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(UP)—The United Nations general assembly began its drive for Dec. 11 adjournment today with prospects of almost immediate showdowns on the proposed reports on Allied armed forces and several other major issues.

The sense of urgency was most evident among the Big Five representatives and the assembly political committee which are seeking a compromise on the proposed UN inventory of Allied troops on foreign soil.

Interest centered today on the British delegation which has insisted that the troop inventory and world disarmament be considered simultaneously. The British were reported considering offering a new proposal calling for an inspection system to verify reports on troops submitted by individual nations.

Throughout the weekend, the United States tried to bring together Britain and Russia. Informed sources said late last night they had heard of no progress.

Failing a compromise which would couple the Soviet request for an accounting of troops in foreign soil with general disarmament and also bring it to an immediate vote in the political committee, the United States planned to side with Britain.

The western countries were determined to tack onto the Soviet proposal an important amendment —one which would require figures on troops at home as well as those abroad. The proposal was expected to be made formally in the political committee, perhaps today.

Also on the speedup schedule, the security council was expected to meet Wednesday or Friday to take up again—on orders from the assembly—the five UN membership applications it rejected last August.

This gave Albania, Outer Mongolia, Transjordania, Ireland and Portugal another chance for seats in the UN—but not much of a chance, according to reliable reports. Russia was said still to be opposed to admitting the last three. The western powers were reported equally determined to veto again the Albanian and Mongolian applications.

TODAY'S DEADLINE FOR GARBAGE BILLS

Although their coal supplies may be dwindling, some Mansfielders are going to find themselves with an abundance of ashes—and garbage—unless they pay their bills by tonight.

That's the deadline for collection of garbage fees, payment of which makes most subscribers eligible for ash service, too.

But Secretary Fred E. Lingafelter of the water-garbage reports numerous bills still unpaid.

Following the close of collections late today, the "stop service" machinery goes into operation, Lingafelter said. A total of $9,228 is to be collected.

BROWNS CLINCH DIVISIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Hints, not guaranteed:

Soon after the football wolves began to howl after Michigan State's Charlie Bachman, backfield Coach Johnnie Pingel flatly turned down an offer from a Lansing industrialist for a job at almost double his present pay. But we also hear that Johnny isn't too popular and that the Spartans really have their eyes on Arizona's Mike Casteel. . . .

A "dark horse" among the possible successors to Andy Kerr at Colgate is William "Ki" Young, who quit coaching at Auburn, N. Y. high school after an unbeaten season to look after his insurance business. Young, a Colgate grad, is a close friend of Kerr.

TAKE BUFFALO OVER, 42-17; YANKEES LOSE

Title Tilt Scheduled In Stadium, Dec. 22.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND — (AP) — For the second straight year, Cleveland's huge lakefront windswept stadium will be the scene of a playoff for a professional football league championship.

On Dec. 22, the Cleveland Browns—greatest crowd-attracting aggregation in pro football history—will meet the New York Yankees for the All-America football conference crown. A year ago the Cleveland Rams defeated the Washington Redskins in the stadium, 16-14, for the National football league title—the margin being a Sammy Baugh pass from the end zone which hit the goal post and rebounded for a safety.

The Browns, before a crowd of 37,054, defeated the Buffalo Bisons yesterday to annex the All-America Western Division laurels. The score was 42 to 17, and the Browns erased a 10-7 deficit to grab the decision. The Yanks clinched the Eastern division title a week ago, before bowing 38-28 to Chicago's Rockets yesterday.

Automatic Otto Graham, Northwestern's All-America back, tossed a pair of touchdown passes against the Bisons to raise his total to 13, while Lou (the Toe) Groza booted six points after touchdown to hike his total in that department to 37, just two shy of the professional record of 39 set in 1943 by Bob Snyder of the Chicago Bears. The "points after" boosted Groza's scoring total to 67, his 10 field goals making up the difference.

In winding up their regular home season of seven games, the Browns boosted their stadium attendance to approximately 400,000 an average of 57,000, and their 12-game total to 585,000. They meet Miami next Sunday, and Brooklyn the following Sunday, in road contests, before coming back here to clash with the Yanks, who have been beaten three times and tied once in a dozen attempts, the Browns have won 10 and lost two.

Edgar "Special Delivery" Jones started the scoring spree by zipping 46 yards around right end in the first three minutes of play. Jones, flashing the form that made him an outstanding All-American at Pittsburgh, made several long dashes during the game.

He tallied again for the Browns in the third quarter when he took a lateral from Dante Lavelli on the 38-yard line after a 22-yard forward from Otto Graham.

Chicago Bears Annex Western Division Title

NEW YORK —AP)— The Chicago Bears today are western division champions of the National football league for the eighth time in their colorful career.

The Bruising Bears clinched the title yesterday at the Windy city by thrashing the Detroit Lions, 42-6 while the New York Giants moved a step closer towards gaining the eastern division crown by scoring a 7-0 triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers at the Polo grounds.

In handing Detroit its eighth defeat in nine starts, the Bears unveiled 230-pound Lloyd Reese, an ex-Tennessee fullback who was called up from the George Halas farm club of Akron, Ohio. Reese cut a big hunk of the rushing yardage and bulldozed to two touchdowns. George McAfee of Ironton, O., sidelined most of the season with a knee injury, also contributed to the yardage and snared Sid Luckman's only touchdown pass—one of 25 yards in the third period.

Chicago, which will meet the eastern division winner for the league championship, Dec. 15, received some unexpected help from the Chicago Cardinals who downed the Green Bay Packers, 24-6 and the Boston Yanks who clipped the defending champion Los Angeles Rams, 40-21. The Card and Yank victories eliminated whatever chance the Packers and Rams had to catch up to the Bears.

The Giants boosted their eastern lead to a full game with Bill Paschal counting the only touchdown of the battle in the second period to climax a 39-yard drive that was set up on a poor punt by Bill Dudley of the Steelers.

By losing, the Steelers yielded second place to the Washington Redskins who knocked the Philadelphia Eagles out of the running by scoring a 27-10 victory at Philadelphia

Rose Bowl Next Page On Illinois Script

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Western conference's biggest football season in history—most successful financially as all attendance records were smashed, and most surprising and unpredictable in team play as many ex-servicemen sparkled while others failed—has come to an end with Illinois a befitting champion.

And as a climax, now comes the Rose bowl. According to script, Illinois will meet the U. C. L. A. Bruins in the colorful Pasadena classic New Year's Day. For the Illini it will represent a tremendous jump into national football prominence, for it took them 18 years to win a conference championship and that was accomplished mainly by a sheer, never-say-die scrappiness usually referred to as team spirit. They cinched the title Saturday by walloping Northwestern, 20-0.

Both offensively and defensively, Illinois was never a leader on the big nine statistics' chart, but touchdowns pay off on the gridiron and the Illini snared enough of them to win six out of seven conference starts, including a choice 13-9 victory over Michigan which eventually kept the Wolverines out of the title.

Illinois' only conference loss was to Indiana, 14-7, and that came two weeks after Coach Ray Eliot got his team at the peak for Notre Dame, which won 26-6.

Today the big nine faculty committees are listing teams in order of preference to make the Rose Bowl trip. This is nothing more than a formality required after receiving the Bowl bid from the coast. Illinois, as conference titlist, seems assured of the nomination.

Coming in for due consideration in the nomination, however, will be Michigan, the conference's top statistical team which piled up 509 yards by rushing and passing to Ohio State's 125.

Ohio College Elevens Sound '46 Death Knell

By DON STULL, AP Sports Writer

The 1946 Ohio collegiate football campaign winds up this week with a four-game Thanksgiving day program that promises to produce the state's best pigskin battle of the year.

The headline contest pits Miami's Redskins against the University of Cincinnati Bearcats at Cincinnati Thursday. Always a natural, the Redskin-Bearkcats tussle this year takes on added flavor, for each school is boasting its best gridiron machine in years—those defeats coming at the hands of "big time" opponents.

Cincinnati, which started the season with a 15-6 upset of Indiana's defending Big Nine champs, has lot only to Kentucky (26-7) and Tulsa (20-0). Miami dropped a 13-7 decision to Purdue and a 20-17 heartbreaker to Miami, Fla.

They've each played three common foes with these results: Cincy beat Dayton 19-0; Ohio U. 19-0, and Xavier 39-0. Miami thumped Dayton 35-0; Ohio U. 23-14, and Xavier 28-6.

Other games on the Turkey day slate send Western Reserve against Case at Cleveland; Xavier against Marshall at Huntington, W. Va., and Wilberforce against West Virginia State at Institute, W. Va.

The final curtain of the season fell for 16 Buckeye collegiate elevens over the weekend, and it crashed with devastating effect for at least two of those schools.

It practically knocked the bottom out at Ohio State and Wittenberg. Ohio State's Bucks took their worst drubbing in 44 years, falling 58-6 before a Michigan onslaught that produced eight touchdowns, seven conversions and a field goal. Wittenberg was crumpled, 31 to 0, by a Denison team that had won only one game in seven uprevious starts.

The Bucks, staving off what looked like their only shutout of the year, bagged a touchdown with less than a minute to go. Sub Quarterback Bill Doolittle, Mansfield, tossed a scoring pass to Halfback Rod Swinchart who ran 40 yards to the goal. The play gained 63 yards.

Denison's unexpected rout of Wittenberg was practically a one-man affair. Fullback Bernie Wentis, playing his last game, celebrated with three touchdowns.

Buckeye teams fared poorly in games with out-of-state competition, winning one and losing three to bring their season record to 51 wins against 34 losses and five ties with foreign foes.

Ten College 11's Sure of Finishing Season Unbeaten

NEW YORK—(UP)—At least 10 of the nation's 15 undefeated and untied college football teams were assured of perfect 1946 records today after finishing their regular season schedules.

Missouri Valley scored its 10th victory in its final game against Rockhurst college last night and has the season's longest winning streak, but Delaware, with nine triumphs this year, has 24 straight victories. The Blue Hens have not been beaten since 1940 but played a 7 to 7 tie with West Chester (Pa.) Teachers in the third game of their 1941 season.

The undefeated-untied teams:

East — Bates, 7-0; California (Pa.) Teachers 9-0, Delaware 9-0; Thiel 7-0; Wesleyan 7-0.

Midwest—Gustavus Adolphus 7-0; Missouri Valley 10-0; St. Norbert's 8-9; Upper Iowa 5-0.

South—Georgia 9-0; Southeastern Louisiana 8-0; Maryville Tennessee college 8-0

West — UCLA 9-0; Southern Oregon college 7-0.

Southwest — Hardin - Simmons 8-0.

Californians Win Argentine Tennis

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—(UP)—Americans were in possession of most of the titles in the Argentine tennis championships today with two Californians, Bob Falkenburg and Margaret Osborne, at the top of the men's and women's divisions

Falkenburg captured the men's crown yesterday by downing Enrique Morea of Argentina, 6-4, 5-7, 6-5, 3-6, 7-5.

Miss Osborne won the women's title on aturday when she topped her fellow Californian, Lois Brough, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Osborne and Miss Brough teamed yesterday to take the women's doubles with a 6-0, 6-3 triumph over Mrs Heraldo Weiss and Miss Abreu, both of Argentina.

Perrysville Defeats Ruggles, 50 to 20

RUGGLES — Perrysville high school defeated Ruggles, 50 to 20, here Saturday night. Virgil Smith led the scoring with 17 points. Herb Brown and Marvin Cates netted 14 and 12 for the visitors.

In the reserve game, Perrysville scored a 26 to 21 victory. Donald Strang, who played only half of the game, led Perrysville with 13 points.

Cleveland Barons Remain In Puck League Deadlock

The Hershey Bears, Cleveland Barons, and Pittsburgh Hornets each scored one American Hockey league victory over the week-end to enable the Bears to hold their three-point lead in the Eastern division while the Barons and Hornets remained deadlocked for first in the west.

Hershey turned back Springfield, 4 to 0 Saturday night to reach 25 points. Cleveland tripped St. Louis, 2 to 0, for 24 points and Pittsburgh stopped Philadelphia 8 to 3, also for 24.

Bowl Contests Prove Travel Is Broadening

By OSCAR FRALEY, UP Sports Writer.

NEW YORK—The New Year's day bowl lineups were about completed today and they demonstrated clearly, as usual, that the Jan. 1 spectacles prove nothing but financial successes and the fact that travel is broadening.

With the mythical national co-champions, Army and Notre Dame on the sidelines, the four big bowls are expected to present these games:

Rose Bown—UCLA vs. Illinois

Sugar Bowl—North Carolina vs. Georgia-Georgia Tech winner.

Cotton Bowl — Arkansas vs Georgia-Georgia Tech loser.

Orange Bowl—Tennessee vs Rice.

As during the majority of the years in the past, the games will prove little or nothing—except disappointments in some cases. Army or Notre Dame probably could take them all on successive Saturdays.

Minus the attendant ballyhoo, none of these games would draw more ahan normal interest on a big football Saturday during midseason. And in three of the four, the odds are that the winner will run off and hide from the opposition.

The Cotton Bowl game at Dallas would serve a point. Arkansas is a good ball club, having clinched a tie for the Southwest conference title. But you can't overlook the little item that the Razorbacks have been defeated twice, by Texas and Mississippi, and were tied by the Oklahoma Aggies.

If Georgia loses to Georgia Tech the Bulldogs, unbeaten in eight to now, probably will be the Arkansas rival, which brings up the question of well-padded schedules Georgia to date includes among its victims such "Titans" as Temple, Furman, Florida and Auburn.

Georgia Tech, if it wins over Georgia, is a fair candidate for the Sugar Bowl on the basis of a rugged schedule to which it has lost only one contest. But North Carolina looks weak as opposition when you consider it was tied to VPI, lost to Wake Forest and to Tennessee, and beat only a Navy team riddled by everybody else.

The Rose Bowl, of course, has sold itself down the river.

As for Tennessee, it can hold high its head. The Vols take a touch one practically every week And Rice, shaded by both LSU and Arkansas, looks like good competition This should be the best game of the day.

Writer Gives Glimpse Behind Scenes On Ways of Russians

(Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow, has been an American correspondent in the Soviet Union for more than five years. Back in the United States on a recent vacation trip, he found Americans intensely interested in Russia. He received hundreds of letters and met a steady flow of questions on elementary facts about Russia and the Russians—how they lived, worked and played and how they ruled themselves. In this series of five stories, touching almost every phase of Russian life, Gilmore tells those facts and others of interest to people beyond the borders of the Russian union—the largest country in the world.)

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW—(AP)—The name of the vast country—the biggest in the world—stretching from the Danube to the Pacific, is not Russia, but the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, which has been shortened to Soviet Russia.

The U. S. S. R. is composed of 16 republics of which the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic is by far the largest, having its western frontier on the Baltic sea, its southern in China, its northern in the Arctic ocean and its easternmost boundary on the Bering Straits.

Two Governing Houses.

The U. S. S. R. has two governing houses—the council of the union and the council of nationalities. Together they are called the Supreme Council of the Supreme Soviet.

In the council of union representation is based upon population. In the council of nationalities the smallest republic has the same numerical representation as the largest.

The Supreme Soviet has a presidium. When the full council is not sitting it has the authority to issue decrees based upon eventual ratification by both houses.

The U. S. S. R. constitution calls for general elections every four years. All well known Russian leaders are members of one of two houses. Generalissimo Stalin represents a Moscow district.

After its election the Supreme Soviet designates someone to form a government. In February this year it requested Stalin to do so. Stalin was designated and approved as chairman of the council of ministers. Then the vice chairman of the council of ministers, the ministers and their vice chairman were named.

The government consists of members of the Communist party and non-members. There is no other political party in the U. S. S. R.

Mikolai M. Shvernik is chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet. This makes him the official head of the state.

The central committee of the Communist party has a general secretary. Stalin holds this office. Other secretaries are Zhdanov, Malenkov, A. Kuznetsov and G. M. Popov.

The Communist party has a political bureau shortened in name to Politburo. Its members are Stalin, Molotov, Zhdanov, Beria, Voroshilov, Andreev, Malenkov, Kaganovich, Mikoyan and Khruschev.

The presidium of the Supreme Soviet is composed of all kinds of Soviets from all parts of the U. S. S. R. It includes Russians, Georgians, Ukranians and others.

Has Great Powers.

The presidium has great powers. When the Supreme Soviet is not sitting, it passes decrees, interprets laws, ratifies treaties, gives decorations and grants pardons. Should the U. S. S. R. be attacked, it can declare war.

The U. S. S. R. has hundreds of Soviets—some of them consisting of as few as 15 members in a village to one of over 2,000 members in Moscow. They all have delegates. These are not professional office holders, but farmers, laborers, artists, engine drivers, oil drillers, engineers, professors, generals and others.

Women not only vote in the Soviet Union but hold offices in the Supreme Soviet. In the government offices and in the party. There is no poll tax and every person 18 years or over not only can, but almost always does vote for candidates nominated at thousands of pre-election meetings all over the U. S. S. R. Both Communists and non-Communists are among the nominees.

I often have asked the question: What can the man in the street or his wife do about taking up some personal matter with the government?

President Shvernik, just as his predecessor, the late Mikail Kalinin, the deputies in the Supreme Soviet, and quite often, even Stalin himself, consider and act upon personal problems brought directly to their attention by individual citizens.

For evidence one has only to look at the long lineup daily at President Shvernik's office across the street from the Kremlin.

The people who make up the U. S. S. R. speak many languages, practice more than 40 religions, and number some 193,000,000 persons. The country occupies one-sixth of the earth's surface.

BY ORDER OF UNCLE SAM!

During the Emergency

ELECTRICITY MUST NOT BE USED FOR THE PURPOSES HERE SPECIFIED

To Our Customers:

"Brown-outs" on the systems of coal-burning electric utilities in 18 states east of the Mississippi and in the District of Columbia, Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri were ordered November 22 by the Civilian Production Administration.

CPA Administrator John D. Small said the action was taken to forestall breakdown of essential public utility systems and to maintain equitable distribution of electric current to the nation's homes and industries during the emergency resulting from work stoppages in soft coal mines.

In compliance with the order of the Civilian Production Administration, the following notice is published by The Ohio Public Service Company.

EFFECTIVE AT 6 P.M., MONDAY, NOV. 25

no consumer shall use electricity for any of the following purposes:

(1) Refrigeration for air-conditioning except to the extent essential for industrial processes or for health and safety.
(2) Outdoor and indoor advertising and promotional lighting.
(3) Outdoor display and flood lighting except to the extent necessary for the conduct of outdoor business or services.
(4) Outdoor or indoor decorative and ornamental lighting.
(5) Show window or show case lighting.
(6) Marquee lighting in excess of 60 watts for each marquee.
(7) White way street lighting in excess of the amount determined by local public authority to be necessary for public safety.
(8) Outdoor or indoor sign lighting except for
(i) Directional or identification signs required for fire and police protection, traffic control, transportation terminals, or hospitals, or directional or identification lighting for any similar essential public services;
(ii) Directional or identification signs using not more than 60 watts per establishment, for doctors and for hotels and other public lodging establishments.
(9) Outdoor entrance lighting, except the minimum essential for public health and safety and then not more than 60 watts per entrance.
(10) Any other form of general outdoor or indoor illumination in or about any commercial, industrial or other non-residential establishment in excess of 75 per cent of the illumination normally used.
(11) In excess of 75 per cent of the normal passenger elevator or escalator service in any building having more than one passenger elevator or escalator.

The CPA further says:

Notice. Each electric supplier shall, as soon as practicable, notify its consumers by publication or otherwise of the uses of electricity prohibited or curtailed by this order. If any electric supplier has knowledge of a violation of this order by a person to whom it supplies electricity, it shall inform the person of the violation unless it has evidence that the person has been informed of the violation in some other manner. If the violation is continued, the electric supplier shall notify the person in writing of the specific terms of the order which apply and of the penalties prescribed for violation and shall mail a copy of the notice to the regional compliance office of the CPA for the area in which the consumer is located.

Violations. When the Civilian Production Administration determines that any person is using electricity in violation of this order, it may direct the electric supplier serving such person to disconnect service and prescribe the conditions under which service may be reconnected. In addition, any person who wilfully violates any provision of this order or who in connection with this order wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information to any department or agency of the United States is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment.

In the best interests of all concerned, The Ohio Public Service Co. respectfully urges its customers to comply in full with the above order

edtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

The way to learn is to ask stions. That is what a tongue or," says Peter Rabbit. Of se he is right. Questions are that open the doors to wledge.

eter sat beside an old stump one side of which the bark split and loose. Cousin Flit- the Wasp had crawled in be- that loose bark. She had said she guessed that would do a winter home, a place in ch to sleep through cold ther. Peter was waiting now he hope that she would come again. She had answered y questions for him and he learned much about which he been most serious, but he ted to learn more. A little wledge is like a little plant— eeks to grow.

Of all places that is the last I would choose in which to id the winter," muttered Pe- as he waited. He repeated to Cousin Flitwing when at last she came out just as Peter was about to give up and go away.

"What is the matter with it?" she asked testily.

Peter had to confess he didn't know; that he just couldn't understand how any one could be warm enough or comfortable enough there to sleep or even keep alive all winter.

"That is because you are not a Wasp. You should have learned by this time, Peter Rabbit, never to judge the needs of others, or what they do by your own needs and what you do," retorted the slim Wasp.

"I guess you are right," agreed Peter, meekly. "There can't be much room in there."

"There isn't. That is what makes it a good place. There is just room enough, and that is what makes it sung and warm. Rough Brother North Wind can't blow through that thick bark nor get in behind it. And don't think I'm the only one who spends the winter in places like this," replied Cousin Flitwing.

"Do all Wasps who sleep through the winter do it behind loose bark like this?" was Peter's next question.

"My goodness, no! I should say not! Any place that is warm enough will do. I just chanced to find this place and see no sense in looking farther. It suits me and that's enough. My cousins are likely to be found in all sorts of places where they can crawl in through cracks or holes," explained Cousin Flitwing.

That reminded Peter that once when he had ventured over by Farmer Brown's barn one day in early fall he had seen a number of Wasps flying or crawling about up under the eaves when he had chanced to look up. He had thought nothing of it at the time. He is like most of the rest of us, seeing things without thought. Now he wondered if those Wasps were trying to get into the barn to spend the winter. Of course, they were. At the same time, others had managed to somehow get into the attic of the house and others were flying about the windows hoping to find a way inside, and Mother Brown didn't understand why there should be so many around now when all summer there had been none about the house.

Peter had another question. He never lacks questions. "Next spring when you wake up, will you use that house of yours you made of that special tough gray paper under that big rock?" he asked.

"I will not," replied Cousin Flitwing in a most decided tone. "That house may not even be there, and I may not go over there. I may like some other place better. Anyway a new family needs a new house in which to grow up, and a new one my children will have.

"But surely Madam Baldface, your cousin, whose family helped her build that wonderful big home in a tree in the Old Briar-patch, or some of the children who live through the winter, will use that house again," cried Peter.

"They have no more use for old houses than I have," retorted Cousin Flitwing.

"What a waste!" said Peter. Cousin Flitwing didn't hear him. She had gone behind the loose bark and she didn't come out again.

The next story: "Striped Chipmunk's Independence."

CONCERT SEATS PLACED ON SALE

Reserved seat tickets for the mid-winter concert of the Mansfield Mastersingers went on sale today, Director A. LeMoine Derr announced. Tickets may be obtained from members of the chorus at $1.50 each.

Featured soloist at the concert will be Mac Morgan, widely known opera and radio baritone.

Morgan will come to Mansfield during a concert tour which includes many of the larger cities.

Born in Texas of Welsh ancestry, he has the traditional Welsh talent for singing. A graduate of the Eastern School of Music at Rochester, N. Y., Morgan was baritone winner of the 1942 national aria auditions and since then has appeared in Cincinnati Zoo opera and as a singer on national radio programs.

With Morgan as the singing star of the program on Jan. 27, Derr is arranging a well-balanced program to include "The Lost Chord" by the 60-voice male chorus, assisted by treble voices.

Auto Club Growth Has Provided Thrill For Its Veteran Employe

Mrs. Maxwell Sees Membership Go Up To 4,430.

By AL PREYER

Mrs. Gertrude Maxwell, 152 Ohio street, whose 18 years with the Richland County Automobile club give her the distinction of being the employe with the longest service there, did some reminiscing as the club held its 27th annual meeting the other day.

"Watching the club grow from 948 members, which it had when I first come here in 1928, to its present membership of 4,430 is quite an experience," Mrs. Maxwell said.

"Jack Berger, club secretary, and I are almost tied for honors as far as length of time with the club is concerned," she continued. "Jack has over 17 years here."

"I was born in Fremont and came to Mansfield in 1920," Mrs. Maxwell said. "In 1928 I went to work as a secretary at the club, and I'm still here," she continued.

WATCHED RAPID GROWTH OF CLUB

"It has been most interesting to me to notice both the growth in membership as well as the improvements in cars and in services rendered by the club."

"Gosh," Mrs. Maxwell replied when asked about her hobbies, "I can't say that I have any special ones. If movies could be called a hobby that is probably where I'd come in.

"One of these days I'm going to see a wrestling match," she exclaimed. "I've heard they're pretty exciting and I like excitement."

Mrs. Maxwell . . . auto club worker 18 years.

PARKS PLANNED FOR AREA LAKES

a cottage site area on the west side of the lake; a small cottage site area on the east side of the lake; a new concession building and docks, parking areas, a water supply system, sanitary facilities, limited picnic grounds, an inn or lodge, playgrounds, lodging cabins, and access and park roads.

"Parks and recreation . . . became a definite and vital part of the (original) engineering plans," the district's engineers said in their report on the plans.

"They (recreational and park facilities) are now considered essential to the welfare of any progressive community," it was said.

The district's 14 dams have created 10 lakes covering 16,000 acres and having 365 miles of lake shore line. Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill lakes are among the eight considered most important for park and recreational uses.

Other lakes the plan provides for are Atwood (Carroll county), Leesville (Carroll county), Seneca (Noble county), Piedmont (Belmont county), Tappan (Harrison county), Clendenning (Harrison county).

Atlantic Gales Batter Vessels

LONDON — (INS) — The liner America steamed toward the United States today in her first civilian westbound Atlantic crossing one day behind schedule because of gales which lashed southern England. The America was scheduled to leave Southampton Saturday.

The 7,000-ton American steamer Zona Gale, which radioed that two crew members had been injured in the storm, arrived in Plymouth harbor but rough seas prevented waiting doctors from boarding the craft. Several other vessels radioed that they were in distress in the mountainous seas.

War Department Set to Fight Economy Slash In Army Strength

U. S. FORCES TOO WEAK NOW, SAY OFFICIALS

Occupation Responsibilities Require Many Troops.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The war department is preparing to fight any attempt by an economy-minded congress to cut the army below 1,070,000 men without a corresponding reduction in occupation responsibilities, it has been disclosed.

This decision figured prominently in a detailed outline of the army's legislative program given privately to a session of the national council of the reserve officers association.

The reserves were told by Secretary of War Patterson that the regular army already is "stretched so thin that we really have no striking force left." Other officials noted that in Europe there remain only one division and the 38,000-man constabulary force in Germany in contrast with Russia's acknowledged 40 divisions.

Meanwhile, with the National Guard and organized reserves in only the first stages of reorganization, the army at the moment is "woefully short" of forces adequate to meet an emergency, officials contended.

Anticipating congressional efforts to trim combined national defense outlays from this year's $13,000,000,000 to as low as $8,000,000,000, officials raised but left unanswered the question where cuts could be made. Likewise undecided was whether the draft will be temporarily revised in January and whether congress will be asked to extend it beyond March 31.

Volunteer enlistments, continuing downward to 4,444 in the second week of November, are running far short of regular army requirements of 37,000 monthly replacements. The war department was represented as firmly convinced that some form of compulsion will be imperative to maintain the regulars and build up the reserve components.

Topped off by a renewed proposal for army-navy-air unification and for universal military training, the principal items of the army's program are to be presented to the January session as "non-partisan national security measures."

Included in this prime category are measures which would authorize arming Latin American countries with United States weapons and sending military missions to any nation requesting them. Such missions now operate under the president's temporary war powers.

Other war department legislation is to be submitted as omnibus bills dealing with organization, personnel and other major subjects, rather than in piecemeal bills. Specific measures ready for submission include:

Personnel—To pay reservists as well as National Guardsmen for part-time active duty, and to provide part pay for retired reservists.

Officers—To make effective the recommendations of the Doolittle board for better machinery to eliminate the unfit.

Organization—Revamping supply and other procedures, including maintenance and disposal of camps and other properties. The 1916 national defense act, under present plans, would be gradually codified rather than replaced.

50th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY—Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Van Kirk, for 22 years residents of New London, being affiliated with the Homer H. JUDGE ORDERS LEWIS TO TRIAL FOR CONTEMPT

Delay in Coal Case Denied By Federal Court.

that touched off the walkout of 400,000 soft coal miners.

Lewis sat silently in the crowded courtroom during the 40-minute session while Hopkins argued that Goldsborough lacked jurisdiction either to issue an order requiring Lewis to rescind the notice or to issue the contempt citation that followed.

Attempts by government counsel to argue that point immediately were cut off by Goldsborough.

Ready for Trial.

Then Hopkins announced that Lewis and the union had taken no action to comply with the court's order that the non-contract notice be withdrawn and were ready to go to a trial which might result in punishment of the union chief if convicted of contempt.

Hopkins attempted, however, to delay the trial date. He said the union has had no opportunity to read the government's argument. A bulky brief was presented at the start of the session by Assistant General John F. Sonnett.

Hopkins declared also that some union counsel were out of town and would not be ready.

Sonnett arose abruptly from the government counsel table and told Goldsborough the government would object to any delay in view of the strike emergency. Goldsborough affirmed the Wednesday date and directed both sides to be on hand in the same courtroom at 10 a. m. (EST) two days hence, declared the matter concluded for the day, and recessed his court.

Contrary to the government's position, Hopkins argued that Lewis' notice to Secretary of Interior Krug terminating the UMW contract was "both legal and proper." He said also that neither Lewis nor the union had taken any action in compliance with the court's order to withdraw the cancellation notice.

Also hit by the brownout order is Mansfield's annual Christmas lighting program. More than 3,000 red and green lights were scheduled to be turned on Thanksgiving day in Central park. The lights, already strung up, must remain dimmed until settlement of the coal dispute.

The Civilian Production administration's order, effective tonight, also bans electricity for non-essential refrigeration and air conditioning, and curtails elevator service to 75 per cent of normal in buildings with more than one elevator.

4 Lights at Theaters

Mansfield theaters tonight will be lighted by four dim 15-watt bulbs instead of the hundreds of twinkling lamps which normally blaze throughout the evening.

Train service in Mansfield already has been affected. At midnight last night, two Pennsylvania passenger trains were discontinued for the duration of the crisis. Service in nearby communities also was affected.

Galion also was affected by curtailment of New York Central passenger train service between Cincinnati and Cleveland. Four trains, two eastbound and two westbound, were discontinued at midnight.

Discontinued were Train 448, which arrives at Galion at 6:20 p. m.; Train 424, arriving at 10:25 p. m.; Train 447, arriving at 10:25 a. m., and Train 433, arriving at 2:05 p. m. Two of these trains also stop at Shiloh, Shelby and Crestline.

Carrier Boy, 11, Has Worked On His Route for 7 Years

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Eleven-year-old Carroll Pritchard has been carrying papers for seven years!

Starting out as his brother's helper Carroll continued as second man on the News-Journal Route 15, until it became his own last January. During those seven years he has bought a bike, his own clothes and a football.

That football very likely was what started Carroll on a pigskin career, for he plans to "go out" for the John Simpson junior high team next year. The seventh grader, who is among the six newsboys featured this week, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Pritchard, 22 Jefferson avenue.

As for theh rest of the group, they're strictly sportsmen! Football and basketball rank first with baseball a close second.

Oldest of the group is Corky Perrine, who has carried Route 14 on Orange and Auburn streets, First and Myers avenues for two and a half years. Also the more thrifty of the group, Corky has saved $150 in bonds, has had spending money, bought all his own clothes and a football.

Sports come first is the hobby line with the 15-year-old lad who will try for the Tyger baseball reserves in the spring. Corky, who plays on the basketball team at the Friendly House, is a sophomore at Senior high and a member of Boy Scout Troop 4. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Perrine, 291 Newman street.

John and Joe Mergel have formed a brother team which has paid off to the tune of $70 in savings from Route 18 in the space of one year. John, who is 14, and Joe, 12, "always wanted to carry papers," but couldn't get a route until recently. This one takes them to Orange street, Central, Laird, Barnes, First, Second, Third and Fourth avenues.

Sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Mergel, 394 Fourth avenue, John is enrolled in the ninth grade at St. Peter's and Joe is in the seventh grade. Football and basketball are tops with them.

Since August, Tom Kudika, has put away $80 in savings from Route 12 on which he averages "around $14 a week."

A basketball enthusiast, Tom is a former Junior Optimist player at the Friendly House. The eighth grader at John Simpson junior high is the son of Mrs. Iva Kudika, 520 Wayne street.

Former Bowman school softballer is Paul Robertson, 12, who carries Route 115 on Harker, Springmill and Burns streets and on Louise avenue.

In six months on the route Paul has saved between $50 and $60 and spent the rest of the proceeds on clothes. Also fond of basketball the seventh-grader at John Simpson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ball, 430 Woodland avenue.

Mrs. Ralph Snavely of Surfside, Calif., was embraced by her husband, a brigadier general and air commander for U. S. Forces in Austria.

Alice McMahon, pretty 11-year-old brunette, emerged from the rescue plane chewing gum and said, "I'm all right. I had a fine time."

Her father, Col. William C. McMahon of Buffalo, N. Y., retiring chief of staff of U. S. forces in Austria, and mother also were rescued.

Others brought to safety were Brig. Gen. Loyal M. Haynes, of Le Mars, Ia., head of the advisory board of U. S. forces in Austria; his wife, formerly of Council Bluffs, Ia.; Second Lt. Irving Mathews of Richmond, Va., copilot; Sgt. Louis Hill, 36, of Portales, N. M., the radio operator, and George Harvey of Iron Mountain, Mich., civilian petroleum officer for U. S. forces in Austria. Harvey's presence in the group was a surprise. He was not on the original passenger list released by the army in Vienna.

Gen. Haynes suffered nosebleed and frostbite, Sgt. Hill scratches and bruises on the face and Mrs. Haynes shock. The others were not hurt.

Roll: Recipe

¾ cup sifted Velvet Cake Flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cold water
4 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
Few drops orange extract

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Add water to egg yolks and place bowl over hot water and beat until light. Gradually add ½ cup of sugar and continue to beat until mixture is thick and lemon colored. Remove bowl from hot water and add flavoring. Sift flour into mixture gradually and fold in with a slotted spoon or fork. Beat egg whites until almost stiff. Gradually add remaining sugar and beat until mixture stands in firm shiny peaks. Fold into batter lightly but thoroughly. Spread carefully into a waxed paper lined jelly roll pan (15½ x 10½ x ⅝ inches). Bake on the center rack in a moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 7 or 8 minutes until cake tests done. Loosen edges and turn out onto a towel sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. An initialed cake of soap is being mentioned among the more expensive Christmas gift suggestions.

Maybe it's no more than coincidence that John L. Lewis has the same first name and middle initial as Sullivan, the one-time heavyweight prize fight champion.

An oddity in the capitalistic system is that while many railroads lose money there appears to be large profit in the manufacture of toy trains for the Christmas trade.

Voluntary Enlistments Gain Volume

ARMED FORCES of the United States are now five times the size they were before the war. Army personnel is 84 per cent volunteers and navy personnel 90 per cent. By July next it is expected the entire enrollment of all fighting forces will be made up of men who have voluntarily enlisted.

Recruiting of this peacetime military has been accomplished without benefit of the GI Bill provisions for free college education, jobless pay, and veteran loans. The new recruits, not eligible under that bill, are offered, instead, good pay—the highest in the world—travel, retirement benefits, and adventure.

The army's aim is 1,070,000 officers and men and the navy's 558,000 officers and men by July next, all volunteers. To meet this figure the army will need 40,000 new men monthly while the navy, needing fewer numbers and already composed of proportionately more career members, may even develop a waiting list.

If a military force of this size is adequate for the responsibility of the United States in world affairs, it certainly is heartening to learn that the force can be developed through volunteer enlistments. It puts service in the armed forces on a high professional basis, and makes "soldiering" virtually a calling. Whether volunteer enlistments would continue without the spur of the draft is not yet known.

Freedom of World Trade Sought

THE AMERICAN delegates to the World Trade Conference in London went armed with a charter the chief aim of which was to set up an organization regulating the commerce of the world. In the words of this document, it is planned "to attack the trade barriers and discriminations which stand in the way of an expansion in the production, exchange, and consumption of goods."

So far, no agreement has been reached as to the methods by which this aim is to be achieved, for the reason that each power represented in the conference wants the freedom the charter would grant without being in the least willing to give up any prerogative of its own. Each wants to be granted a different handicap and would give no leeway to any other power.

Discouraging as this deadlock may seem at first glance, it merely follows the precedent established by all former convocations with global aims. Sooner or later some point is found upon which all, or nearly all, can agree, whereupon, after endless discussion, a small compromise is effected and a start is made.

Considering the number of nations involved, the intricacy of their relationships, and the complexity of their problems, it is surprising how much has been accomplished

Confidence Is Sometimes Misplaced

EPISODES of the past week, involving "walk-aways" by reformatory trusties from the Grafton honor camp and from the institution farm, have tended to raise a question in the public mind as to the advisability of permitting so much freedom to youths who have been convicted of offenses against the law.

This, however, is a customary part of reformation processes by which some carefully chosen reformatory inmates are given an opportunity to show whether or not they can be trusted when placed "upon their honor," and a check-up discloses that the percentage of error in choice is surprisingly low.

It cannot be avoided that such violence as was indulged in by the four youths who left the Grafton honor camp last week makes it more difficult for other reformatory inmates to gain similar privileges—but the speed with which such miscreants are re-captured and subjected to more severe punishment should be an object lesson to other inmates who may sometime feel inclined to take advantage of special privileges gained by a period of good behavior.

48 Weeks Work for 7 Weeks Pay

RECENT revelation that comedian Milton Berle "is averaging $12,000 a week" as star of a revue in New York, led one interested calculator to make a "guesstimate" of how much Mr Berle would be likely to retain out of "such a haul."

It simmers down to the supposition that by 'getting $12,000 a week for 48 weeks Mr. Berle's "take" for the year would total $576,000.

Deduction of an agent's commission, of probably 15 per cent—$86,400—would leave $489,600

"Then," says the calculator, "Mr. Berle has his expenses which, for a high-ranking entertainer, aren't chicken feed . . assume he has $450,000 left after expenses are deducted and before the income tax collector takes his bite"

And what a "bite"! The federal tax on $450,000 in 1946 will be $365,104, leaving Mr Berle $84,896—or seven weeks' pay for working 48 weeks.

Maybe it's a good thing, after all, for a few people to SEEM to be making a lot of money—imagine what would happen if millions of small taxpayers had to kick in that percentage of their income.

Another Contribution To Education

A NEW institution of higher learning, Middlesex university will open next year as Brandeis university at Waltham Mass. Organized under the Albert Einstein Foundation it is named in honor of the late Louis Brandeis, justice of United States Supreme Court It is to be dedicated "as a Jewish contribution to education in this country."

America will reap the rich fruits of Jewish culture, a harvest that in a large measure might have been Germany's had that country not followed a blind despot. Not only Jews will gain from the new university center. The intellectual resources of the whole country will be enhanced.

Claude Callan advises: "Don't fall out with a man because of what he says when angry In anger there is a broken connection between the brain and the mouth."

Democratic National Chairman Bob Hannegan has been advised by his doctors to take a long rest—and nothing seems to stand in the way.

Disarmament Agreement Would Brighten the Financial Outlook

By RAYMOND MOLEY

IN TWO previous columns, it was suggested that Republican leaders in congress had better count their chickens before they promise deliveries. This applies especially to the claim that $3,000,000,000 can be saved by discharging federal employees The best that could be expected from a careful and necessary pruning of the federal payroll would be about $1,000,000,000 Representative John Taber, prospective house appropriations chairman, is on sounder but obvious ground when he points to certain non-recurring items, such as terminal leave payments and several other army and navy expenses These amount to $4,500,000,000 Another billion is in subsidies, now unnecessary after the end of price control A liberal total of the items above is $7,000,000,000

MOLEY

Another item suggested by Mr Taber is $1,500,000,000 scheduled for federal construction projects Perhaps this can be saved by deferring proposed projects and slowing down construction affairs like the Pan-American highway

It is a principle recognized by everybody that government construction ought to be planned and made ready for a quick start when private business slackens and big unemployment starts.

Such expenditures may and probably will not be necessary for a year or more

By granting this claim of savings on unnecessary construction, we have enough savings to bring the budget down from the current figure of $41,000,000,000 to about $33,000,000,000

The estimated income for the current year is $39,500,000,000 If present rates are maintained and if perchance people and corporations have the same income next year (June 1947-July, 1948) these cuts would leave a margin of $6,500,000,000 This, theoretically, is what there is to cover a payment on the debt and to reduce tax rates

A general cut of 20 per cent on individual income taxes would amount to about $3,500,000,000 That would leave $3,000,000,000 for debt reduction, which is a minimum to pay in a year of good business and inflated prices It ought to be more, but it can hardly be expected that a political congress will pay more

This is a speculative balanced budget. But it is highly speculative because there is no assurance that the taxable income will be as high in the next fiscal year as it is now.

Prudent finance would suggest two courses for Republican leaders, other than those which have been suggested

The first relates to taxes Instead of a rash promise to reduce all individual income taxes by 20 per cent, there should be a careful study of the tax structure to eliminate inequities and to stimulate certain sectors of business activity Such adjustments and cuts may as well be in corporate tax schedules as in individual rates

But the amount to be saved and the exact places for the cuts cannot be determined until Messrs Harold Knutson and Robert Taft have done a lot of work with their committees If, after they have made their investigation, they have some good news, they should, by all means, give it to a hard-pressed public But not before

On the spending side, there are several profitable lines for study. It ought to be clearly brought out why the sale of surplus war property has yielded such miserably disappointing returns

The department of commerce has said that during the year after V-J Day, $5,000,000,000 worth of inventories of civilian industries have been bought by the armed services Should that amount now included in military expenses, be a non-recurring item?

Finally, the real giant among expenditures, the armed services, is $19,000,000,000 This depends on the course of diplomacy If some measure of disarmament can be achieved, the financial picture can be bright indeed That is up to Messrs James Byrnes and M Molotov

One Important Case Decided By Goldsborough In Favor of Lewis

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the most interesting things about the government's injunction against John L. Lewis is that it was granted by Judge Alan Goldsborough, who previously had decided a vitally important case in Lewis' favor.

Thus the justice department had the fortune to appear before a judge who certainly cannot be suspected of prejudice against Lewis, especially in view of the sensational nature of the case which he decided.

For on Jan. 10, 1945, Judge Goldsborough handed down a ruling, which, if it had gone the other way, might have shaken the iron throne from which John L. Lewis long has ruled over 400,000 miners.

The case—also an injunction suit—involved the right of another mine leader to run as a rival against Lewis for president of the United Mine Workers.

If Judge Goldsborough had ruled the other way and granted the injunction of rival mine leader Ray Edmundson, by one stroke of the pen he would have opened up the entire question of dictatorship vs. democracy inside the United Mine Workers

Here are the highly significant facts behind the dispute

Squelching a Rival.

Ray Edmundson, once appointed by Lewis as president of District 12 which takes in the entire state of Illinois, was duly elected by his district as a delegate to the Cincinnati United Mine Workers convention in 1944, at which he proposed running against Lewis for president

However, Lewis had Edmundson barred by the credentials committee from even setting foot on the convention floor This was contrary to all the by-laws of the United Mine Workers, which gives any delegate the right to be heard Furthermore, Lewis proceeded to kick Edmundson out of the union, thereby making it impossible for him to be employed as a coal miner

Edmundson then sought an injunction in the U S courts, citing the by-laws of the United Mine Workers which call for free and fair elections, and demanded the right to sit as a duly elected delegate and also to have his name placed on the ballot as a candidate for president

Not in ten years had any miner had the courage to challenge Lewis's iron-fisted rule Edmundson at least had the satisfaction of forcing Lewis into court That, however, was as far as he got Judge Goldsborough, who last week ruled against Lewis, in this case ruled for him John L's rival candidate for presidency of the United Mine Workers found himself out of court

Lewis' Hatchet Man.

To those who knew the inside dealings of the mine workers, Ray Edmundson's break with Lewis had great significance because for ten years Edmundson had been Lewis' so-called hatchet man in the long and bloody Illinois battle with the Progressive Miners Testimony taken by the Illinois mining commission shows page after page where Edmundson operated for Lewis in the feud which saw 21 of Lewis' rivals killed

Most significant of all was the fact that Edmundson helped Lewis put across the payment of around $300,000 to mine operator Carl Elshoff at Springfield, Ill, to keep his mines closed in order to throw Progressive Miners out of work.

One interesting development in this extraordinary case is that William Green president of the A F of L heard about Lewis secret payment to Elshoff as early as 1938 but did almost nothing about it—even though the Progressive Miners were then members of the A F of L

In December 1938, Green got a letter from banker F J Lisman of the Lisman Corporation New York, stating that "a man by the name of Elshoff, lessee of a mine is paying a rental of $2,000 to the owners of the mine at Springfield, Ill There is something very peculiar about this situation, of which you would like to be informed I think one union is paying rental in order to keep the workers of another union out"

Green at that time was the hated rival of Lewis The latter had left the AFL and was calling Green all sorts of names However, Green did nothing except pass Lisman's letter on to the Progressive Miners

Secret Financial Deal

How close Edmundson and Lewis were at that time is shown by the way Edmundson then president of District 12 appeared before mine locals to squelch criticism of the $300,000 payment The Illinois miners had had no idea this amount of money was being taken out of their dues to pay a mine operator to stay closed for two years and a half In fact they did not know it until the secretary of the treasury started his income tax probe of Lewis

When word finally leaked out however the rank and file of the United Mine Workers were sore especially in Illinois where they had been asked in the fall of 1940 to vote an assessment of 1 per cent against their earnings in addition to regular dues Though they did not know it, this was to pay the $300,000 hush fund given to mine owner Elshoff.

This extra assessment was voted down However, six months later, without a vote, Lewis' controlled executive board, acting through Edmundson went over the heads of the miners and levied the assessment anyway Thus Illinois miners in May 1941 unbeknownst to them were called upon to pay $300,000 spent three years before by Lewis and Edmundson to keep a mine closed in order to throw 500 other miners out of work.

Miners Blast Lewis.

When the U. S treasury unearthed the facts, local members of the United Mine Workers hit the ceiling.

"It's a hell of a policy to hand over our dues to a mine owner," remarked Robert Martin, head of Local 49.

"Had this come before the executive board I would have opposed it," said John Glasgow, a member of District 12's executive board "Advancing money to mine owners isn't my idea of square unionism."

However, by that time, there was nothing the miners could do about it. Furthermore it later leaked out that Lewis had given an additional $500,000 of miners' dues to Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury and operator of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company. None of this probably would have come to the attention of the rank and file miners if the federal government had not started its income tax investigation.

Yet later when Ray Edmundson, the man who had been Lewis' close buddy in putting across these secret deals, decided to run for president of the United Mine Workers, he was not even allowed to set foot on the floor of the Cincinnati convention, but was expelled from the union

Such are the dictatorial tactics of the man who now accusses the U S government of dictatorship.

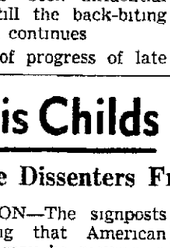
Spirit of Conciliation Is Developing.

WASHINGTON — Russia recently has exhibited a spirit of compromise and conciliation in United Nations deliberations that seems worth noting.

This has resulted in concessions She has shown a willingness to sit down and work out differences where they exist Yet, withal, whatever she does still brings a reaction of suspicion from many quarters in this country, some of them responsible and influential In some cases it is a blunt refusal to accept anything that Russia offers at face value, a dismissal of her co-operation as having some mysterious, sinister motive. In others it is a grudging and reluctant admission that perhaps Russia means it, but take it all with several grains of salt.



STOKES

It is, of course, only wise to consider all these matters from every angle But unless we are willing, as a people, to deal with others in a spirit of trust and sincerity, it becomes a bit discouraging

Worst of all is that encouragement of the chip-on-the-shoulder attitude can have a harmful effect on the people of this country who anxiously desire peace, who want to get along with Russia.

We've got to find a common meeting ground Lately we seem to have made progress in that direction, and undoubtedly ex-Senator Warren Austin, head of our delegation, has been influential there But still the back-biting and scepticism continues

The record of progress of late is interesting and, it would seem, significant and hopeful

The Trieste problem finally was solved after protracted deliberations Russia has shown a disposition to try to make some arrangements on the veto which, we sometimes forget, is just as dear to the United States senate—always there in the background—as to Russia

In the field of disarmament Russia has taken the lead, just as she did back in League-of-Nations days at Geneva

It was Russia which first proposed reports on disposition of troops over three months ago, but limited to "non-enemy" countries, so it would apply to us and Great Britain and not to her own troops in eastern European countries

Subsequently, Mr. Austin, when he accepted the Russian proposal for general disarmament, called Russia and countered with a proposal to disclose all troops everywhere, at home and abroad.

Now Foreign Minister Molotov has accepted the proposal to report all troops beyond a nation's borders, and, as for troops in the homeland, Russia argues this is a matter for settlement when disarmament is formally considered. Mr Molotov expressed confidence this could be worked out then.

It looks like progress through the gradual give-and-take still is necessary in diplomatic bargaining

Recently there was an example of how Americans and Russians can get along. That was at the Moscow conference on international communications.

An official report of the success of the conference was given by Francis Colt De Wolf, chief of the tele-communications division of the state department, who was high in his praise of the Russians and told how well the American delegation, which included several businessmen, got along with them

Farmer's Diary: "Post-War Incident."

I WALKED into a grocery just ahead of two hitchhikers School was out and the store was full of customers selecting merchandise These two tired hungry looking lads of about twenty interested me, and I observed them more than casually

They were quiet and suave, whispering together for a moment beside the bits of well wrapped pastry The tall one looked at packages of dates and nuts neatly stacked "A few of those would last us clear across the state if we're lucky" The shorter one reached into his pocket and took out some small change With a wave of his hand and a quirk of the lip he indicated that they might need all of it later They moved apart

So the taller boy with broad shoulders stood facing the busy clerks not paid any attention to what his buddy was doing I could see by the anxious look on his twitching face that a battle was raging within him Once he paced to the door His companion waited outside the big show window motioning for him to come on He took one step over the threshold and turned back—his face perspired Then he saw the manager approaching and his look grew firm determined and pale

'If you please sir he said nervously apologetically could I see you for a moment?

'Why, yes- what's on your mind?"

'It might seem small to you" said the young man but it looms big to me My buddy and I are hitchhiking through We've come more'n a hundred miles and have got that far yet to go Our money's mighty scarce We agreed to steal what we needed for the rest of the trip and while he snitched some things a few minutes ago, I stood here and shielded him He's outside there now waiting for me to go with him He drew a long breath The manager watched him keenly

"But I can't go through with it My mother--she's dead—but she taught us not to take things that didn't belong to us . . . I went through three years of the war without doing it and I won't begin now . . . even though it's a bit tough to be hungry . . . seems like I could see my mother shake her head and say No"

'How much did your buddy pick up?"

'I don't really know I wasn't looking"

Could it have been $3 worth?'

"Yes—maybe five Suppose we say it was five If you'll trust me for a week or two I'll give you my name and address, and send you five as soon as I draw a pay"

The groceryman looked the boy in the eye, and put out his hand 'I'm satisfied I'm glad to have met you Come in again, when you're over this way"

"Thank you," exclaimed the lad "Here's the name You'll be hearin' from me"

With a wave of his hand, he stepped rapidly out into the street and joined up with his buddy His shoulders were squared and so was his chin His mother could have been proud of him'

One Man's Opinion

PRISONERS in Massachusetts state prison staged a sit-down strike over the weekend Whatever gave them the impression that John Lewis would be sent there?

I hear that the jailer in Washington was hoping that he wouldn't get John . Striped suits still are short in the larger sizes.

But the most callous citizen of all was the fellow who upon hearing that John was up for hearing Monday wired him 'are you interested in leating your house for the next six months?

The thought seems to be spreading though that the AFL survived when John left it the CIO survived when John left it and the United Mine Workers might possibly struggle along with a Tom Kennedy or someone else who doesn't boil at low temperature

Some Dissenters From Foreign Policy.

WASHINGTON—The signposts are multiplying that American foreign policy may be moving in a new direction The latest such signpost is a speech by one of the moguls of the Republican party which went almost unnoticed

Speaking before the Petroleum Institute in Chicago, J Howard Pew of the Sun Oil company made a more or less direct attack on the kind of practical economic co-operation proposed through the United Nations The speech was a ringing declaration that America as a nation of rugged individualism must stand aloof from a wicked collectivist world

CHILDS

Pew is of course, not a member of the new congress, nor is he ever likely to stand for elective office But his influence within the party is very great

Through the lean years, Pew and his more politically minded brother, Joseph N Pew, jr, have contributed large sums to keep the Republican party alive

Their influence in the inner circle of Republicanism is impressive partly because they speak for the industrialists who are an important nucleus within the GOP That is what gives so much significance to the Pew speech in Chicago Apostrophizing the greatness of American "initiative ingenuity, skill and industry," Pew went on to say

"Now we are told that the economy which produced this standard of living for the American people must be abandoned—that we must embrace economic collectivism This, it is said, we must do in order that we may live in harmony and prosperity with nations that have chosen the collectivist course

"Such is the primary justification offered for the multitude of proposals now being projected under the auspices of the United Nations organization These are the threads now being woven into the fabric that may become a strait-jacket of government control for our American domestic economy as well as world trade Each of these United Nations proposals should be studied in its relation to the other, for under the master plan it is intended that they should be coordinated under the U N economic and social council"

Pew then attacked specifically the proposal of the U N food and agriculture organization for an International Food Board to regulate commodity surpluses until the world's food supply is back to normal He directed a more oblique attack on the state department's proposal for an international trade organization under the U N. This, according to Pew, contains provision for "inter-governmental cartel agreements"

His chief fire, however, was reserved for the petroleum agreement which we negotiated with Great Britain two years ago Because of the vigorous protests of the petroleum industry in this country, that agreement was watered down in renegotiations a year ago In the form in which it now is pending before the senate foreign relations committee, it is little more than a promise to consult on world petroleum problems

Although they speak from the opposite side of the ideological fence, men of the Pew type sound curiously like the extreme leftists in the British Labor party who do not like the American system of free enterprise.

Therefore just as do the Pews, they want to pull away from any co-operation Between them, they are likely to tear our world apart and, in the process, destroy the very liberties that the rugged individualists profess to be defending

SLAM AND CHRISTIANITY

Having read and heard many prejudicial and unlogical erances against Islam and Muhammad in this most civi-d and liberal country, as a U. S. citizen, I have always shed and intended to show clearly and concisely what am is and thus to remove some misconceptions concern-this universal religion, I have time after time published number of articles in the Mansfield News-Journal. I also ve been sharply criticised by some of the honorable readers. order to enlighten the impartial listeners and seekers er truth, I have this time compiled two good and interest-articles on Islam and Christianity, by true authorities Islam and outstanding Christian scholars. I also submit following letter, addressing it to whom it may concern:

It is reported that the Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him), said: "People are mines gold and silver: the more excellent of them in ignorance the more excellent of them in Islam, when they attain owledge."

It is not quite true that "Islam" is as old as the hills, it was in the lifetime of the Prophet, during the 7th ture, that God declared, "This day have I perfected for your religion and completed My favour on you and sen for you Islam as a religion." (Quran, 5:3). However, rmly believe that were you to seriously study our religion m true Muslim sources, and not from those who misinter-t or malign it, you would have to concede to us so much. Certainly there is no need to recall the tremendous split ich has already befallen the Christian faith, in its mod-istic and fundamental tendencies, a disruption brought out by the advance of science and the spread of knowl-ge, proceeding mainly as the result of Western intensive earch, by its scholars. Islam itself can welcome the oloration of science.

And yet we have the same prophets, the same founders the same God, we of Islam, as have the Christians. For se who refuse to listen to the words of truth, life has a y of passing on, over their heads. Blessed are they who len to the promptings of their conscience, and do not ak of what they do not know. Jesus emphasized love, t never did he think to overlook justice. I therefore eech you, that until you have studied Islam more thor-ghly, and seen things from other angles but one, will se that have prejudices please reconsider their position, this is a time when a man's mistakes will find a quicker lgment.

Sincerely,
Muharrem Nadji

ISLAM

Islam is the same religion as that which was thought all Prophets with Jesus included, but its perfection was t to the last of the Prophets—Muhammad, when God clared: "This day I have perfected for you your religion l completed my favour upon you, and chosen for you am as a religion." (Quran, 5:3.)

The finality of the Qur-anic revelation is, therefore, ed on its perfection. New scriptures were revealed so g as they were needed, but when perfect light was cast all essentials of religion in the Holy Qur-an, no prophet s needed after it. Six hundred years before, Jesus Christ, o was the last among the national prophets—the Holy ophet Muhammad being the prophet not of one nation t of the whole world—had declared in plain words that could not guide the world to the perfect truth because world at that stage was not in a fit condition to receive t truth: "I have yet many things to say unto you, but cannot hear them now. Howbeit when he the spirit of th is come, he will guide you into all truth" (John 16 : 12,). Among the Scriptures of the world, the Holy Qur-an, erefore, occupies the unique position that is a perfect velation of the Divine will.

THE QUR-ANIC CONCEPTION OF GOD

The verses of the Holy Qur-an which depict God and His nature: l in the Holy Qur-an is neither man God nor spirit God, both are le to bring our conception into culdesac. Incarnation has been con-ved in Hinduism and Christianity because God was supposed to be pirit capable of making his home in the human frame, and convert-that frame into divinity. The man God is liable to multiplicity, so Qur-an describes God as Noor—Light, pervading the universe.

God is the light of the heavens and the earth; His light is as a he in which is a lamp, and the lamp is in a glass, the glass is as ugh it were a glittering star; it is lit from a blessed tree, an olive ther of the east nor of the west, the oil of which would well-night e light though no fire touched it,—light upon light!—God guides His light whom He pleases; and God strikes out parables for men, l God all things doth know.*

No better simile can be advanced for describing an Infinity then h a universal light. Spinoza's Pantheism must have been influenced this verse of the Qur-an. The clear glittering light of olive lamp ld be in our time substituted with electrical light in the bulb which es light though no fire touched it, and just as we have found in the ctrical energy a thousand and one miracles, similarly the mind and rgy of the Divine light controls the whole universe in a mysterious y. There will not be much difficulty in assigning this light the ver of will, and knowledge, or the hundred and one attributes ich the Qur-an has given to this Universal Light so beautifully nted by Edwin Arnold in his admirable poem the Ninety Nine autiful Names of Allah, a gist of which is given in the following ses.

God, there is no god but He, the Living, the Self-Subsistent. mber takes Him not, nor sleep. His is what is in the heavens and at is in the earth. Who is it that intercedes with Him save by His rmission? He knows what is before them and what behind them, l they comprehend not aught of His knowledge but of what He ases. His throne extends over the heavens and the earth, and it es Him not to guard them both, for He is High and Grand. (Qur-an, 55:)

The Qur-anic doctrine of God is again summed up in the follow-beautiful chapter which is found at the end of the Book.

Say, He is God alone! God the Eeternal! He begets not and is begotten! Nor is there like unto Him anyone.

UNITY OF THE UNIVERSE UNDER THE RULE OF GOD

Do not the unbelievers see that the heavens and earth were a lty joined together before We clove them asunder? And We made m water every living thing, will they not then believe?

Imagine the Arabian Prophet over thirteen and a half centuries iting such wonderful truth about the origin and unity of creation. attribute to our poets and philosophers inspiration and yet the n-Muslim would deny Muhammad this title! I believe, however, that e day he will be acknowledged as one, if not the greatest benefactor humanity.

The Sufis or Mystics of Islam contemplate on the Unity of God d the Unity of the Universe and develop a sense of unity that raises eir souls to beyond the world of senses. Islam, however, warns ainst the illusion of Incarnation or Nirvana. God is not limited. The mitable Time and Space are both created and not co-existent with m. He is absolute and all depends on Him. Scientists see faintly sign in things, but ultimates are not their concern. Only the few n have glimpses of the Divine Wisdom in things.

EQUALITY OF MAN BEFORE THE LAW

The Holy Prophet Muhammad sought the Unity of mankind in eir acknowledgement of equality before the Law. None is above the w. As long as nations do not apply their standards of moral con-ct outside their geographical boundaries and have various standards plied to various peoples, there will always be unrest. The Atlantic arter must therefore be applied everywhere if it were to be taken riously.

MUTUAL RESPONSIBILITY AND SOCIAL SOLIDARITY

In one of the most significant small chapters of the Holy Qur-an, hammad echoed the voice of Reality when he recited this sermon to nkind.

I call upon the witness of Time: Verily man is in loss, except ch as have faith and do righteous deeds and join together in the mu-al teaching of truth and of patience and constancy. (The Holy r-an.)

MUSLIMS FAITHFUL FOLLOWERS OF JESUS

In respect to certainty of faith and action Islam stands in strik-g contrast to Christianity. Muslims are more faithful followers of sus than Christians. Moreover, the Holy Qur-an, on which their lief and actions are founded has never been revised since it was st published. Its teachings have been accepted and are followed -day by millions and they have been accepted and followed by yriads during fourteen centuries who have never questioned its thority as the guide in life and belief. The history of Islam has ver been darkened by polemical discussions on doctrine. G. K. esterton once said that the nineteenth century had been "equally oched by blasphemy and bored by theology."

Nor have the standards of Islam ever been varied. In fact, it has ly one standard—Submission. Submission to whom? to what? To e Will of Allah. Islam is a personal religion, for just as the Muslim lieves that it is not possible for another to make atonement for the s he commits and the follies of which he is guilty, so it is impossible r him to make atonement for the sins and follies of another. But he n relieve the distresses, sufferings and ills of others and this he is enjoined to do by the Holy Qur-an, not by substitute, but by himself directly, not secondarily through any Charity Organization Society. Islam, as a personal religion, must be personally accepted, adopted and exercised. It has neither priests nor god-parents nor has it substitutionary atonement, for every Muslim, every day and at any moment can approach Allah without the offices of any mediator, human or divine. It is a rational faith, undisturbed by any scientific pronouncement and throughout its history it has remained unaltered by any scientific discovery.—(Dr. M. S. Dudley Wright, Ph. D.)

THE VALUE OF PROPHECY

The value of prophecy, as a miracle of Islam, is, however, much more extensive. There are great and wonderful prophecies in the Book (Qur-an), and more still in Hadith (Sayings of the Holy Prophet), extending into the far future, many of which have been fulfilled in our own age, and almost every generation of Muslims sees with his own eyes the fulfillment of one or more of these great prophecies, and needs not to turn the pages of history to find out what miracles were performed by the Holy Prophet in a previous age. Another feature of this miracle is that it has been vouchsafed even to the righteous followers of the Holy Prophet in every age. Thus it is not the Prophet's own prophecies that are witnessed in every age, for prophecy is also a heritage to his devout and faithful followers.

PERFECTING THE TRUTH

The work of perfecting the truth was left to the coming Messenger. The Holy Prophet Muhammad claimed to be the Promised One, but the Christian Church does not admit his claim as such. It declares that the Comforter was the Holy Ghost, that appeared on the Day of Pentecost and filled the Church. The Church, thus filled with the Holy Ghost, is believed to be the Comforter. But has the Church fulfilled the conditions laid down in the promise? Jesus says: "Nevertheless I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away: for if I do not go away, the Comforter will not come to you . . . yet I have many things to say to you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of Truth, is come, he will guide you into all truths."

Has the Church said those many things not told by Jesus? Has she added to that brought by Jesus and taught that which was not taught by Jesus? Has she supplied the missing link between us and our goal and bridged the gulf yawning between God and man? Every branch of the Christian Church claims to be the "Comforter." I need not dwell upon their respective merits. I take the corner-stone of their teachings, which is common to all. I mean, "Salvation through Blood." This is the only thing through which the Christian Church can claim to guide humanity into all truths. But there is nothing new about it. If it was a truth, it became revealed to ancient paganism and is the distinctive feature of the mystery cult. "The dieties of the mystery faith were essentially Saviour Gods, whose task was to rescue their votaries from the influence of sin" (Modern Churchman, April 1926). By the Mysteries, no less than by St. Paul and by the Catechism of the Anglican Church, it was thought of as effecting a "death unto sin, and a new birth into righteousness." In the mystery faiths, says Tertullian, "they are baptized, and they imagine that the result of this baptism is regeneration and the remission of the penalties of their sins." And Dr. Angus tells us that initiation was considered as a "death" from which believers arose through rebirth.

The creed of sacraments is thus a legacy from the ancient world. Again, the teaching of the Church always has been under constant revision. Anything taught under the dictates of the Holy Ghost ought to be a permanent truth. Anything established by one Christian Council has been rejected by the next Council. The truth of yesterday has become the falsehood of today. From medieval days, up to now, various things were taught and have since been rejected. The space at my disposal in these pages does not permit me to deal fully with the subject. I, however, see one thing, belief in the Blood has outlived eighteen centuries. It may be taken as a permanent truth, but the Modernist Church in our days has exposed its falsity and traced it to pagan origins. The Church cannot be the Comforter.

This Church theory has another defect in it. It possesses, as it were, a merit of demerit. It, in a way, damages the character of Jesus. The Comforter had to descend from the heavens after Jesus. He was not in the world, as the words of the Master show (John, XVI:7).

If the Holy Ghost was the Comforter, shall we presume that Jesus, throughout his ministry, remained without the Holy Ghost? What a dangerous inference, but it is logical.

The Holy Spirit, it is said, assumed the form of a dove. Did the Spirit disappear after the Baptism of Jesus through the Baptist? Perhaps these logical inferences never occurred to the builders of the Church. But I am afraid it is too much to expect it; logic or reason has never characterized dogmatized religion.

SONS OF GOD

So the passages that speak of the "peace-makers" and the spiritually-resurrected people as "sons of God" run counter to John 3:16, unless we take the words "only begotten Son" to apply only to the time and the people to whom the words are spoken. Further, there is a point which our Christian friends never care to understand. They forget the scientific fact that an inspired teacher comes in a society when that society has lost the spark of spiritual consciousness, just as a shower of rain comes on a land when it has exhausted its resources of water. The inspired teacher comes as a medium through which the spiritual consciousness of the nation is to be reawakened. The society itself is incapable of producing any person with a living spiritual consciousness. There is no fire anywhere from which a person can light his own soul. So the direct intervention of God takes place. He with His own hands lights the fire in one man who, in his turn, is to give the same fire to others. Thus, in this sense, every prophet and spiritual regenerator is, metaphorically, "the only son of God" in his own time, in that he is regenerated by God Himself, and is the only person of this type in his time and among his own people. Unfortunately, our Christian friends never apply to Christ the rules that are applicable to all speakers. No speaker unless he says so in so many words should be con sidered as applying his remarks to all times and all peoples while addressing an audience. There is nothing in the Gospels to show that Jesus meant his remarks to apply to all times and to all places. It is unwarranted, therefore to suppose that he claimed anything for himself which could not be, and had not been, claimed by people before and after him.

Coming to your assertion that you have obtained "free salvation" in the living person of Jesus, I must tell you that I have heard the assertion from many religious-minded Christians. I do not disbelieve those who say this, but I certainly hold that they are under some delusion. If all these Christians had actually attained salvation from sin, the atmosphere in Christendom would have been very different from what it is today. I, therefore, cannot help feeling that these well-meaning people do not really know what salvation means. The moment a person attains full salvation he becomes a dynamic force for virtue. His company would change the life of a stubborn sinner. He would be a moving spirit of moral resolution. (See "Muhammed and Jesus,")

——*NOTE——

(*"And I will ask the Father, and He shall give you another Periqlytos that he may stay with you forever." (John xiv, 16, etc.)

There is some incoherency in the words ascribed to Jesus by the Fourth Gospel. It reads as if several Periqlytos had already come and gone and that "another Periqlytos" would be given at the request of Jesus. These words leave behind the impression that the Apostles were already made familiar with this name which the Greek text renders Perqlytos. The adjective "another" preceding a foreign noun for the first time announced seems very strange and totally superfluous. There is no doubt that the text has been tampered with and distorted. It pretends that the Father will send the Periqlyte at the request of Jesus, otherwise the Periqlyte would never have come! The work "ask" too, seems superficial, and unjustly displays a touch of arrogance on the part of the Prophet of Nazareth. If we want to find out the real sense of the words we must correct the text and supply the stolen or corrupted words thus:

"I shall go to the Father, and he shall send you another apostle, whose name shall be Periqlytos (which means Ahmad, Muhammad) that he may remain with you forever." Now with the additional underlined words, both the robbed modesty of Jesus is restored and the nature of the Periqlyte identified.

B. N. "Professor Abdul Ahad Dawud, B. D., the writer of the series of articles entitled "Muhammad in the Old Testament," appeared in the Islamic Review" and was followed by the two other equally erudite series, under the headings "Muhammad in the New Testament" and "Muhammad in the Besorah," is the former Reverend David Benjamin Keldani, B. D., a Roman Catholic priest of the Uniate-Chaldean sect.)

Again,

"But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things." (John 14:26.)

And again,

"Nevertheless, I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart, I will send him unto you." (John 16:17.)

Yet again,

"I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when he, the Spirit of Truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth." (John 16:12-13).

All these prophetic words predict in unequivocal terms the advent of another prophet after Jesus. Yet Christian theologians have ever been at point to twist them so as to make them applicable to the Holy Ghost. The terms of the prophecy do not warrant this conclusion: "If I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you" are words too clear to need any comment. Do the Christian commentators mean to say that Jesus was not blessed with the company of the Holy Ghost? The New Testament says that John was filled with the Holy Ghost even before he was born. Then it speaks of Jesus himself as receiving the Holy Ghost in the shape of a pigeon. Thus the Holy Ghost used to visit men before Jesus as well as in his own time. What is then the reference made to, in the words "If I go not away, the Comforter will not come to you?" Surely not to the Holy Ghost; for it is almost blasphemous to think that Jesus was without one. Genuine reverence for Jesus requires that we should recognize even his disciples, purified as they were at the hands of their great Master, to have been pure enough to merit the company of the Holy Ghost. The Holy Qur-an, at least, credits the companions of the Holy Prophet Muhammad with such company in clear terms: "And he aided them with the Holy Spirit from Himself." (58:22.)

No doubt the words "Holy Ghost" which have also been used in the prophecy, if not an interpolation, are intended to betoken that the Promised One would have such an inseparable union with the Holy Ghost that his advent might be taken, metaphorically of course, as the coming of the Holy Ghost itself. There are other words in the prophecy, which are not applicable but to the Prophet Muhammad. The characteristic features set forth in the prophecy are found one and all in him. "That he abide with you forever" indicates that there would be no prophet after the Promised One. This is exactly what the Holy Qur-an says of the Holy Prophet Muhammad: "The last of the Prophets." (17:81.) Again, "He shall teach you all things," says the prophecy. The same says the Holy Qur-an about the dispensation of the Prophet Muhammad: "This day I have made perfect for you your religion." Then the Promised One is called the Spirit of Truth in the prophecy, which is also confirmed by the Holy Qur-an in the words: "Say, the truth has come and falsehood has vanished."

Thus, the prayers of Abraham and Ishmael, and the prophecies of Moses, Jesus and others, were fulfilled in the person of the Holy Prophet Muhammad, may peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him for ever and for ever.

"JESUS THE SON OF MARY"—HIS BIRTH AND DEATH
By KHWAJA NAZIR AHMAD

(Excerpts.—M. N.)

The sources of the life of Jesus vary as to their origin, language and importance. The primary sources are the Canonical Gospels, Acts and Epistles. The Hebrew sources must, however, come first, since Jesus lived and died among the Jews. And the Canonical Gospels must come last. They sum up the events of the life of Jesus and his teachings. The Pagan sources, the Apochryphal Gospels, Acts and Epistles and the writings of the early Christian Fathers must come in between. I will deal with the facts as given in the Holy Qur-an and the Hadis last of all.

THE EPISTLES

The earliest of all the Christian sources are the Epistles of Paul. Of about the same period are the Epistles of Peter, James and others contained in the New Testament.

The authorship of the Epistle to the Hebrews and the three Pastoral letters (1 and 2 Timothy and Titus) are no longer attributed to Paul, indeed their authenticity is not even maintained. They have been excluded by a majority of the independent critics from the Pauline Canon.

Paul, or Saul, was one of the contemporaries of Jesus, but he did not know him and had not seen him. He, however, testified to having seen him in a vision on his way to Damascus. (Acts, IX:2-5.) Three years after, he went to Jerusalem for fifteen days and during this time had met Peter and James, the Just, the brother of Jesus, but did not come in contact with any other of the Apostles. (Gal., 1:17-18).

It would, therefore, be not difficult to conceive that Paul could, and perhaps did, obtain information concerning the life and teachings of Jesus. He knew, by hearsay, not only of the life of Jesus, and of his death on the cross, but also of his resurrection. Paul, therefore, is a trustworthy witness as to the existence of Jesus, but nothing beyond this. If we bring together all the allusions and references from his writings, without examining their truth, we learn from him that Jesus was a Jew (Gal., III: 16), that he was made of the seed of David, according to the flesh, (Rom. 1:3), that he was born of a woman, born under the law, (Gal., IV: 4), and that he had brothers, (I Cor. IX: 5), one of whom was James, that he preached only to Israel, (Rom., XV: 8), and was an humble and obedient servant of God, (Phil., II: 8), that he chose twelve Apostles, (I Cor., XV: 5), that he was reviled (Rom., XV: 3), and crucified, (I Cor., IX: 5), by the Jews because of their malice against him, (I Thes., II: 4), and finally that he rose again on the third day according to the Scriptures, (I Cor., XV: 5-8), and showed himself to Peter and the twelve Apostles and others and to Paul himself, (I Cor., XV: 5-8), and that he now sits on the right hand of God, (Rom., VIII: 34), awaiting the great day when he shall come again.

The incompleteness of this reconstructed life of Jesus, as Paul gives us, becomes all the more apparent when we contrast it with the full Christology contained in his Epistles. The conclusion is forced on us that Paul had deliberately sacrificed Jesus to Christ. This will become all the more conspicuous when we realize that he did not only ignore the historical Jesus for the mythical Christ, but that he also maintained his apostolic independence of those who lived with and saw Jesus; and held himself aloof from the teachings of Jesus as contained in the Gospels, (Gal., I: 11-18). What Jesus may have said and done on earth became almost a matter of indifference to him. Brought up and influenced by the syncretistic mysteries of the Pagans, Paul conceived Christ as the saviour god, to whom his followers had been united by a powerful rite—his redeeming sacrifice on the cross. Paul set up a creed, of which Jesus knew nothing. Dr. Arnold Meyer, Professor of Theology of Zurich University, while discussing the original efforts of Paul to reconcile the Gnostic speculations and the Rabbinical arguments, points out that, by gradually developing his doctrine of Justification, Paul has forever shut out the simple faith of Jesus. The Christological and Eschatological system of Paul, he says, has blocked the approach of many simple souls, and for many nations, to the childlike piety of Jesus. Dr. Meyer puts a question to himself: Who is the founder of Christianity? and in unequivocal terms goes on to furnish the answer:

"If by Christianity we understand faith in Christ as the heavenly Son of God, who did not belong to earthly humanity, but who lived in the Divine likeness and glory, who came down from Heaven to earth, who entered humanity and took upon himself a human form through a virgin, that he might make propitiation for men's sins by his own blood upon the Cross, who was then awakened from death and raised to the right hand of God, as the Lord of his own people, who believe in him, who hears their prayers, guards and leads them, who, moreover, dwells and works personally in each of them, who will come again with the clouds of Heaven to judge the world, who will cast down all the foes of God, and will bring his own people with him unto the home of heavenly light so that they may become like centre of His glorified body—if this is Christianity, then such Christianity was founded by St. Paul and not by our Lord. (Meyer: Jesus or Paul," 122.)

Dr. Meyers goes on to say that:

Paul, it is true, wrought a work of tremendous historical importance in that he raised Jesus from the position of a Jewish Messiah to that of the Divine Redeemer of the Gentiles and of the Gentiles and of the whole world:" (Ibid).

Dr. Joannes Weiss, of Heidelburg University, also remarked in a similar strain that to Paul Jesus was not only the prophet but the object of religious veneration, and came to the conclusion:

"Hence the faith in Christ as held by Paul was something new in comparison with the preachings of Jesus; it was a new type of religion." (Weiss: Paul and Jesus, 130).

Wrede says that Paul was not the disciple and servant of Jesus, which he professed to be, but of another the heavenly Christ. He adds:

"The teaching of Jesus is directed entirely to the individual personality. Man is to submit his soul to God and to God's will wholly and without reserve . . . the central point for Paul is a divine and super-natural action. He who believes in these divine acts—the incarnation, death and resurrection of a divine being—can obtain salvation. The point which was everything to Paul was nothing to Jesus." (Wrede; Palaus, 6.)

But I cannot leave this discussion like these three eminent scholars have done, by merely pointing out the difference between the teachings of Jesus and the creed which Paul introduced into the world. I must go deeper and probe the basis of his belief, the reasons for it and the extent to which Paul did create it out of his own imagination. Paul himself relied on a vision which he had when he was near Damascus. In his vision, his hallucination as some call it, Paul merely heard a voice (Acts, IX: 3—7), saying unto him: "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" In this vision Paul was further asked not to kick against the pricks. The man who was with Paul and the other bystanders saw nothing, heard nothing. So terrified was Paul that he could neither hear nor see anything for three days. To cure him Jesus had to appear to Ananias, and say to him that:

"Paul is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles and Kings and the children of Israel" (Acts, X:15).

It is most extraordinary that neither of these incidents is mentioned by Paul himself. If Paul was in fact the chosen vessel surely Jesus could have announced to him at the time he had appeared to him or he should have appeared again. But super-natural events, they say, happen in a manner beyond the understanding of men. This much is certain that Paul never had any direct revelation from Jesus, and such as he claims to have had was merely the result of his own imagination, because he did not see Jesus again even in his dreams. He resorted to falsehood, and, being conscious of it, protested most vigorously against those who dared charge him with the lies he had told. In his Epistle to the Romans, he wrote:

"For through my lie abounded unto his glory, am I also still judged as a sinner?" (Rom., III: 7—Revised Version, 1244)

I have intentionally used the text of "the many ancient authorities," which the compilers of the Revised Version quote. But to make the position perfectly clear I also give the passage as it appears in the Authorised Version:

"For if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto the glory of God, why yet am I also judged a sinner?"

Such, then, is the foundation upon which Paul has built his creed.

From the very beginning the other Apostles of Jesus were all afraid of him and "believed him not" (Acts, IX: 26), but they received him for a short while on the intervention of Barnabas (Acts, IX: 27), whose Gospel, it may be mentioned, the Christians disown to this day.

Paul's character can be judged from the following incidents. In Jerusalem he was attacked by the Jews. To save himself, and to win their sympathy, he pleaded that he was a Jew of Tarsus (Acts, XXII: 3); but when he was taken in custody by the Chief Captain, who had him bound with thongs and ordered his examination by scourging, Paul, with a view to escape the punishment, did not hesitate to tell him a lie and pretended that he was a Roman (Acts, XXII: 25). Later in the day, he addressed and declared to the crowds that he was a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee (Acts, XXIII: 6), but, when produced before Festus, he once again urged his Roman citizenship. The Governor had, therefore, to send him to Rome to stand his trial before Augustus (Acts, XXV: 10-11). In Rome Paul was imprisoned twice for misdemeanour.

But, leaving these considerations aside, if Paul did wrongly attribute to Jesus a religion other than which Jesus preached, we ought to find some Apostolic denunciation of the Pauline creed, or, at least, some indication that the Apostles did disapprove of his ideas. If we wade through the Epistles for such information we shall not look in vain. Therein we will find a triangular fight going on between James, the brother of Jesus, Peter and Paul in which Jude also takes a part. Of course, as fellow-workers in the same cause, they objected, in the first instance, to each other's viewpoint and did not mention any names. Gradually, however, not only names were mentioned but the opposite view was styled as heretical. When, however, the Apostles failed to check, by these methods, the activities of Paul, they actually, after fourteen years, summoned him to a Council at Jerusalem, to explain his conduct and to account for his misdeeds. He attended with his supporters but defied them. They had no control over him, their appeals in the name of Jesus failed, and they were left with no alternative but to disassociate themselves from him. Thus came about the first dissolution of the integral faith, and different sects of Christianity, each diametrically opposed to the other, saw the first light of day.

Paul did not believe in the observation of the law (Rom. II: 14) for he said that if righteousness come by the law then Christ died in vain (Gal., II: 21). Paul pointed out that those who were of the Works of the law were under a curse (Gal., III:10). The propagation of these views had a three-fold object. First, to preach that a man is justified by faith alone, without the deeds of the Law (Rom., III: 28) and secondly, it was a gibe at James, the brother of Jesus, who held the opposite view, and, thirdly, it won on the Greek soil, many licentious adherents to the Pauline creed, for they were assured of salvation without any good deeds. In fact to such, by way of encouragement, Paul had said—

Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die (1 Cor., XV: 32).

And Paul also told them:

A man was not justified by the work of the law no man shall be justified" (Gal., II: 16).

In the same Epistle he further encouraged his followers to stand fast to the liberty for which Christ had made them free, and he advised them to "be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" (Gal., V: 1). Paul boasted that he had neither written any Gospel, nor had he used any of those which had been written (1 Cor., IX: 15). Nay, to the contrary he boldly asserted that:

I give my own judgment as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord (1 Cor., VII: 25).

Paul, it is true, did claim inspiration in a round-about way. He claimed that he had it from the Holy Spirit (1 Cor., II: 10—16; Gal., I: 10-11; 1 Thes., IV: 8; 1 Tim., II: 7), but he also claimed that it had been given to many, nay, to most of the Apostles, though in different degrees (1 Cor., XII: 4—12). But no one else claimed it. Paul, however, at places spoke of his own judgment and also of what he said on authority, which he predicated with the assertion: "The Lord says, not I." He also distinguished his judgment by phrases like: "I, not the Lord" or "this I give by permission, not commandment." It has, therefore been construed that all his writings which are not thus qualified are inspired. But Paul naively pointed out that his Gospel was something different from "the preachings of Jesus Christ" (Rom., XVI: 25). He never stressed these preachings, but at times expressly, though falsely, declared himself to be "speaking by the word of the Lord," when he manifestly was giving out his own ideas only. To give but one example, Paul, while expressing his own belief regarding the approaching end of the world, falsely alleged that he was "speaking by the words of the Lord" (Thes., IV: 15). We do not, therefore, know which portions of his Epistles are the result of a revelation from Jesus and which are his own inventions and blunders. How can we be certain that the very texts, on which the Christians rest their dogmas, their faith and their hopes, are not the human and uninspired portions? This is one of the reasons why the early Christians rejected the Pauline Canon.

In these circumstances, and the doctrines of Paul being against the teachings of Jesus, the other Apostles, as already mentioned, denounced Paul and his views. Thus James, the brother of Jesus, the head of the Church at Jerusalem, was the first to challenge the views of Paul. We find in his Epistle:

"Whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of good works, this man shall be blessed in his deed" (Jas., 1:25).

James further pointed out (Jas, II: 10):

"For whatsoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."

He raised the question: Whether faith alone, without deeds, could have a man? (Jas., II: 15). And himself gave the answer that:

"Even faith, if it hath not words is dead being alone" (Jas., II:17).

Then we come across James polemics against Paul:

Thou believest that there is one God: thou doest well, the devils also believe and tremble. But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead" (Jas. II:19-20).

And condemned the Pauline creed of Justification.

"Yee seen then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only" (Jas., II:24).

And finally, he said to Paul:

"Ye rejoice in your boastings; all such rejoicing is evil" (Jas., IV: 16).

I now turn to Peter. His character is well depicted in his denial of Jesus thrice in one night before the cock crew. Likewise, here we find him adopting the line of least resistance. In his Epistle he advised his "beloved brother" Paul to be sober in habits and to "watch unto prayer" and be charitable. For such meek attitude James had to dub Peter aptly as "double-minded." But as Paul began to exceed all limits Peter had to style him, of course, not by name, as a "false teacher," who had introduced into the faith "damnable heresies," and "pernicious ways." But when the divergence of their views became too apparent Peter not only attacked his "dearly beloved brother Paul" but also warned his followers against him. Referring to the Epistles of Paul he said:

"As also in all his Epistles speaking in them of these things; in which are some hard to be understood, . . . Ye, therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye only being led away with error of the wicked fall from your own steadfastness" (2 Pet., III: 16-17).

Jude was equally vehement in his denunciation of Paul. He said:

"For these are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God unto lasciviousness. . . . These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts; and their mouth speaketh great swelling words, having men's persons in admiration because of advantage. . . . These be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the spirit" (Jude, 4, 16, 19).

There is another incident which throws some light on the subject. The original name of Mark was John, and he is, as such, referred to in the Acts. Paul and Barnabas had taken him (Acts, XII: 25) from Jerusalem to Antioch, to act as their minister and scribe. After passing through Cypress Mark suddenly left them (Acts, XIII: 13) because of his dislike of Paul's inclination towards preaching to the Gentiles (Dummelow, Commentary on the Holy Bible, 722).

In the opposite camp were John, the Evangelist, and Paul. John, who always was a step ahead of Paul, was the first to attack those, Corinthus in particular, who did not believe in the son-god theory. He wrote:

"Who is a liar, but he that deniath that Jesus is the Christ? He is anti-Christ that denieth the Father and Son" (John, II:22).

Referring to those who held the opposite view he said:

"And this is that spirit of anti-Christ whereof you have heard that it should come and even now already is it in the world" (I John, IX: 3).

Now let me turn to Paul in this connection. He, as one would expect, could not stand this onslaught quietly. In the first instance he contented himself by a simple warning.

"Let no man deceive you with vain words. . . . Be not ye, therefore, partakers with them" (Ephpes., IV: 6-7).

As a result of these divergent views divisions arose, and in Corinth a sect came into being, and its followers rejected Paul. He styled them as "thorn in the flesh," the messengers of Satan," and wrote:

"For it hath been declared unto me of you, my brethren . . . that there are contentions amongst you. . . . I thank God that I baptised none of you . . ."

To the Galatians he said:

"I marvel that ye are soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another Gospel" (Gal., II:6).

To the Romans he appealed:

"Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offenses contrary to the doctrine which ye have learnt; and avoid them. For they that are such, serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple" (Rom., XVI: 17-18).

In another place he questioned his disputants:

"Am I not an Apostle? Am I not free: Have not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? . . . My answer to these that do examine me is this: Have we not power to eat and to drink? Have we not power to lead about a sister, a wife, as well as other Apostles, and as the brother of the Lord and Apostles? Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working" (1 Cor., IX: 1—6).

I have already mentioned that, after fourteen years, when matters reached a climax James, as head of the Church of Jerusalem, summoned a Council. The proceedings of this meeting are detailed in the Acts and Paul's version is to be found in his Epistle to the Galatians. Paul tells that on this occasion he was accompanied by Barnabas and Titus. He was taken to James who was sitting in company with the Elders. James charged him with preaching to the Gentiles and for forsaking Moses, i.e. the Law. They asked him to refrain in future from doing so. Paul says that their appeals were so forceful that even "Barnabas was carried away with their dissimulations" (Gal., II: 13). But he goes on to say:

"When Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed" (Gal., II: 11).

Paul concluded his version of the meeting at the Council, by saying:

"But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the Gospel, I said unto Peter before them all. . . . Complainest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews? . . . Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the Law. . . . But if while we seek to be justified by Christ, we ourselves also are found sinners . . ." Gal., II: 14—17).

Paul then rebukes the Galatians:

"O foolish Galatians who hath bewitched you that ye should not obey the truth" (Gal., III: 1).

Thus, Paul tried to impress the belief on others, that his creed was more important than that of James or Peter. To Paul's mind the centre of interest was not the teacher, the worker of miracles, the companion of publicans and sinners, the opponent of Pharisees, but it was the crucified son of God raised from the dead and none other.

Paul, therefore, is the least valuable for our knowledge of the real life of Jesus. Similarly, the remaining Epistles of James, Peter, John and Jude do anything of importance to our knowledge, except that Peter makes Jesus descend into hell to preach to the dead (1 Pet., III: 19) and the Transfiguration is recalled (2 Pet., I:17).

THE CANONICAL GOSPELS

These Gospels, "good news," were written in Greek and were in existence, in some form or another, in the second century of the Christian era: Mark about 65—70 C.E., Matthew about 85 C.E., Luke about 90—95 C.E., and John about 110 C.E. The early Christians believed that the end of all things was at hand, and this belief, for a considerable time, prevented them from setting up any written standard of authority. So much so that Papias, writing in the middle of the second century expressed his preference for the spiritual gifts of Jesus as superior to any written testimony. Justin Martyr also, about the same time, only speaks of the Memories of the Apostles, but nowhere does he refer to them as Gospels. Gradually, however, a lot of material was reduced to writing* for the benefit of rich patrons, and not for humanity at large; and a good deal of spurious material was introduced. Eusebius, writing about 325 C.E., divided the New Testament into three classes: those acknowledged with authority, those whose authority was disputed and the spurious. He included the Acts and a few other books of the New Testament in the third class. In the East opposition to the Revelations lingered even in the fourth century; while in the West the books whose authority was challenged included Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews. The subject was much discussed at many councils of the Church, and it was not till the Third Council of Carthage, at which Augustine was present, in 397 C.E., that the Canon of the New Testament was finally settled. The naive impudence with which the proceedings of this Council are described provokes a smile. The Church Bishops, gathered at this Council, in spite of many prolonged and devotional prayer and concentrations, could not get the Divine blessing of a united decision. As a last resort, at the suggestion of one of them, all the books were placed under a table and the Fathers sat around it, with closed eyes, invoking Divine guidance in the name of their Lord Jesus Christ. And when they had finished their prayers, they, on opening their eyes, beheld on the table the four Canonical Gospels and other books now found in the New Testament. Someone in the room must have performed the miracle in the name of Jesus Christ; and so the Canon of the New Testament became settled.

The system of chapters of the New Testament, now in use, was invented by Cardinal Hugo de S. Caro in 1236 C. E. The Cardinal also divided each chapter into paragraphs marked by letters, but this was superseded by the Verse-System introduced by Robertus Stephenus in 1551 C. E.

This first redaction must have undergone many changes. There are three ancient manuscripts, the Cordex Sinaiticus, otherwise known as the Alpha, found by Tischendroff on Mount Sinai in 1859, said to be of the fourth century; the Cordex Alexandrinus known as A found by Cyril Lukar, Patriarch of Constantinople in 1662, which is traced to the fifth century and, the third, the Cordex Vaticanus, otherwise known as B, is said to be of the fourth century. It need hardly be mentioned that they are incomplete and differ with each other inasmuch as some contain such portions of the New Testament as are missing in the others. The Manuscripts now known as Cordex Ephraemi Syri (C) and Cordex Bazae (D) merely complicate matters further, for they also also differ in material particulars.

*Gal., I:6, Luke, I:1—4.

I have yet to explain the existence of so many Gospels and Epistles. I have already referred to the internal struggle, which started soon after the crucifixion, between James and Paul, and between Peter and Paul, a struggle which left its everlasting mark on Christianity. As a result of the struggle the Ebionites, under James, set themselves against the Samaritans and the Gentiles, the followers of Paul. Thus the Gospel to the Hebrews, which is attributed to Matthew, was written for the Jewish Christians. The Gospel of Luke was written for the followers of the "Double minded" Peter. When the Ebionites succumbed to the opposing and increasing influence of the Gentiles, the Gospel according to the Hebrews, with a good deal of modifications, alterations and additions, became the Gospel according to Matthew. Similarly, the Gospel of Peter became the Gospel according to Mark. Jesus, the Nazarene was thus sacrificed for the glorified Christ, Jesus, the man, disappeared and gave place to Jesus, the son of God. Thus the first Christians, who thought it necessary to put the Gospel in writing, had to diminish the traditions in one direction and to enlarge in another. Their motives were not historical, but rather cultural and ethical. The necessity of extreme precautions for correctness of the texts was not felt. The copyists and writers, who had less scruples about altering them and fitting them to suit their own views, had a free hand.

It would be extending the scope of this article if I were to point out the innumerable discrepancies of the four Gospels. I will content myself by mentioning two significant facts only. Whatever is attributed to John by the Synoptic Gospels is omitted by John himself in the Fourth Gospel. Secondly, although churches have been named and festivals kept in honour of the twelve Apostles, and although bishops and priests have all along professed to derive special authority from the first ministers of the Church, yet an effort has to be made, by the Christians themselves, to reconcile and harmonize the original lists containing the names of the Apostles as given in the Gospels (Cp. Matt., X: 2—4; Mark, III: 16—19 and Luke, XIV: 16). John, however strikes an entirely discordant note by making the first nucleus of these Apostles as having been furnished by the followers of John the Baptist. (John, I: 40).

It is legitimate, therefore, to question the trustworthiness of the letter of the text of the Gospels. We do not possess the originals, not even the text of the Canon; we know them only as copies of copies. The accuracy of the manuscripts is doubtful, and the carelessness, the ignorance, the conceit and the deceit of many a copyist worked havoc with the texts. We must not overlook the mischief done by the intentional "corrections" of the texts made by those who deliberately, under the pretext, modified them, in one direction or the other, to suit, and advance, their religious beliefs. The reaction of the most important episodes of the Gospels, the Passion for example, was especially influenced by cultural conditions. As soon as Jesus became Christ, an object of worship, a cultural legend regarding his virgin birth and resurrection became necessary, and the Gospels show a steady progress towards this end: and every attempt was made to establish the fulfillment of all the prophecies of the Old Testament in the person of Jesus. The Gospels were rewritten to serve the purpose of instructions of controversial apologies, and of organized worship, and, strictly speaking, it is to these matters that they owe their birth. The development of Christology raised problems concerning the relations of Jesus to God and to the Cosmos. They had also to meet and counteract the vigorous Jewish revival resulting in calumnies heaped against Jesus and his mother; thus were set fourth with a complete absence of restraint or good taste, the edifying legends of popular beliefs.

It is evident that the attempts to adopt the Gospel tradition to the liturgical requirement have most effecively contributed to the introduction of the mythical and the suppression of the historical elements. What is surprising is not that the Synoptics contain so little of the actual life and authentic teachings of Jesus, but that they appear still to preserve some fragments of it. Perhaps this was due to the rivalry, already indicated, of the three Apostles and their followers. And to this must be attributed the fact that we have three Gospels instead of one blended Gospel, like that of John which really is a religo-philosophical book, which likewise is of little help in reconstructing the life of Jesus. The object of John was to interpret Jesus as Logos. (The origin of Logos is attributed by Justice. Martyr to mythus) the "Word of God" in its extreme philoric sense. The value of the Gospel is more theoretical than testimonial. Referring to this aspect Wernle says:

"The fourth Gospel derived its importance, lasting beyond the time of his birth, from its having bridged over the chasm between Jesus and Paul, and from its having carried the Pauline Gospel back into the life and teachings of Jesus. It is only through this Gospel that Paulinism, attained its absolute dominion in the theology of the Church." (Wernle, Beginning of Christianity, Vol. II, 262).

And he goes on to say:

The significance of the fourth Gospel consists in the fact that it refers the teachings of Paul back to Jesus Himself. This constitutes its value and its worthlessness, its force and its fatality. (Wernle, Beginning of Christianity, Vol. II, 276).

The more thoroughly we study the historicity of the Gospels the least we are certain about their authenticity; but in spite of it we cannot cast wholesale doubt about them. If we study the Gospels with full knowledge of the mythical and dogmatic atmosphere in which they were written, we can know what in the Gospels to accept and what to reject; what is early and what is late; what they attribute, under influence of Pauline creed, to Jesus, and what they have unconsciously preserved of the real Jesus. Only after such a process of selection and elimination can we come to recognize the historical Jesus, the son of man, the Prophet of God, who was born, lived and died like any other man.

This, then, is the history and worth of the New Testament which "containeth the Infallible Word of God, nay, is the word of God." (Revised Version, XV). The claim that it was revealed and, therefore, infallible or was inspired has no foundation or justification. Rev. Professor J. W. Donaldson, after discussing the various arguments in support of this claim, comes to the conclusion:

We see, there, by a mere statement of the reasoning used in support, that the hypothesis of an infallible literature is as baseless as the fabric of a dream. (Donaldson, The Christian Orthodoxy, 156). The question of inspiration of the New Testament is of dogmatic, not of historical import").

The very idea of God having inspired four different men to write different and irreconcilable records of the same events, or rather of many different men having undertaken to write different records of whom God inspired four only to write, let me suppose, correctly leaving the others to their own unaided resources and giving us no test by which to distinguish the inspired from the uninspired, certainly appears to be unbecoming of God and anything but natural. Where was the necessity, one might ask, for God to have inspired four different men to differ and cause confusion? And in view of the notorious differences only one of them can be correct, and, perhaps inspired, and which one? Further as William Greg has pointed out in his "The Creed of Christendom:"

"The Gospels nowhere affirm or even intimate their own inspiration, a claim to credence which had they possessed it, they assuredly would not have failed to put forward. Nor do the Apostolic writings bear any such testimony."

THE NAME

According to a Biblical prophecy (Isa., XII: 14), alleged to have been fulfilled in Jesus (Matt., 1:23), he was to be called Immanuel (God is with us), but he was never so called: and, according to his own utterance, at a most crucial time of his life, instead of God being with him, he had, indeed, been forsaken by Him (Matt., XXVII: 46). Isaiah also mentions the other name of Immanuel as Maher-shalal-hash-baz (Isa., VIII: 3). This name also was never applied to Jesus. So far as Jesus was concerned, therefore, this prophecy remained unfulfilled, and, as I will show you later, did not, and could not, apply to him.

As foretold to both Joseph and Mary, in separate apparitions (Matt., 1: 20-25; Luke, 1:28-31), the name should have been, and was in fact, Joshua (Aramic: Jesua; Arabic: Isa) which in Greek is Jesus. Among the Jews of Palestine the name Joshua was exceedingly common. It was as if one were to be called a Karl among Germans, a Louis among Frenchmen, a Nicholas among Russians and a Smith or a George among Englishmen. Jesus is also referred to in the Gospels as Christ, the Anointed; Messiah, the Wanderer: and Nazarene, the Warner. Joshua or Jesua, Isa or Jesus was his name, Christ his designation, Messiah his descriptive rank and Nazarene his significant title as a Prophet of God.

It has always been taken for granted that Jesus was called the Nazarene because he belonged to Nazareth. The declaration of the evangelists (Matt., 11: 23 etc.) on this point is so definite that even the present-day commentators and historians have accepted it almost universally. But, like so many other Christian beliefs, it has no foundation at all.

The word Nazarene appears in the Gospels in three different forms: Nazarenes, Nazoraios and Nazorenos; which the evangelists have taken to be interchangeable. But none of these forms is capable of being derived from Nazareth; the t or th (Aramic tsade), which is represented by the Greek letter zeta in these three words points to the contrary.

The theory that the word Nazarene was merely to indicate that Jesus belonged to a sect of that name is equally devoid of force; for no one has so far been able to prove that this sect existed at the time of Jesus. The reference to the word Nazarite or Nester (Jer., XIII: 5), a branch, signifying the Davidic descent, an offshoot of the stem of Jesse, has equally no application. Here, again, in both cases the presence of the letter t (tsade of Aramic) and the absence of zeta will stand in the way. We will have, therefore, to look for another solution. In the word Nazir in Arabic (same in Hebrew, and Aramic was only a dialect) we find the zeta of Greek, the zain of Hebrew or the zal of Arabic. Nazir means holy, chosen, guard or warner. Thus Nazir would be a fitting title for Jesus who was holy in character, a chosen man, a Prophet of God, a guard over the lost tribes of Israel and a Warner from God to them. The Greek equivalent of Nazir is Hagios: the Holy one of God.

Now, let us see if this word has been applied, in this sense, in the Gospels, to Jesus. In Mark we have an account of one of the first miracles of Jesus, the healing of a demoniac who, on seeing Jesus, exclaimed:

"What have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy one of God" (Mark., 24; cf. Luke, IV:34).

In John we find Peter addressing Jesus thus:

"And we have believed and known that thou are the holy one of God" (John., VI:69; also see next note).

In Luke the angel, which appeared to Mary, informed her:

"That the thing which shall be born of three shall be called holy." (3).

(3) Luke., 1: 35. Both in Luke, 1: 35, and John, VI:69 the words used in the Authorised Version are: "the Son of God" and "Christ, the Son of the living God." But both these are subsequent forgeries. The texts given by me are according to the ancient MSS. See marginal notes on Pages 1125 and 1177 of the Revised Version.

I will quote but one more passage from the Acts:

"Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus the Nazarene a man chosen of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourself also know" (cts., 11:22).

I have given the translation of the Cordex Syriac Sinaiticus.

Similar passages (Acts, II: 27; Rev. III: 7) can be cited to show that the early Christians knew and applied the word Holy one to express the title of Jesus, and, at the same time, to impress upon the mind of others the idea of his character as the Messiah.

I have here only very briefly set out the grounds for holding that Nazir was the special descriptive title of Jesus. The compilers of the Encyclopaedia Biblica say:

Therefore, Nazarene must have taken the place of some title of the Messiah. The right reading must be Nazir, the Holy One, which is the title of the Messiah (Ency. Biblica, Col. 3360).

It is interesting to note that Professor Salvatorelli also came to the same conclusion, though on somewhat different grounds. In his wonderful work: Il Significanto di Nazareno, he opined that the Promised Messiah must also bear this descriptive title of Nazir.

. . . . I have so far endeavoured to discuss the Christian sources for the biography of Jesus. I have examined the New Testament and rejected its authority as an authentic or a contemporary record. I have enquired into the origin and history of the Acts and the Epistles and shown that they hardly contain any element of truth. I have referred to those early biographical compilations which can alone be regarded as worthy of some attention: and have pointed out that they also cannot be accepted in their entirety. I have ventured to indicate how genuine passages can be picked out and separated from the innumerable forgeries and how facts can be distinguished from the legend and fiction. It would perhaps be safe to accept all such passages, found in the New Testament and other early Christian literature, as go against the popular Christian dogmatic beliefs. If we follow this and the other rules of caution already indicated, with sagacity, perseverance and impartiality, we will be able to arrive at a fair approximation of the real facts. Thus the ground work of the career of Jesus will be laid with some confidence and the leading features of his life will become discernible, though many problems will still remain unsolved and many paradoxes will vainly excite curiosity and baffle explanation.

Before dealing with the Islamic sources I would like to quote a few verses from the Holy Qur-an which disclose the real worth of the Bible. It is very significant that what modern researches have only recently established was in fact disclosed by the Holy Quran about fourteen hundred years ago. The Holy Qur-an has repeatedly exposed the corruption of the Biblical texts. There are numerous such references but I will quote only a few of them.

Addressing the Muslims and speaking of the Jews, the Holy Qur-an says:

Do you then hope that they would believe in you, and a party from among them indeed used to hear the Word of Allah, then altered it after they had understood it, and they know (this) (The Holy Qur-an, II: 75).

Referring again to the Jews, the Holy Qur-an says in another place:

This is because they say: The fire shall not touch us but for few days; and what they have forged deceives them in the matter of their religion (Ibid, III: 23).

Speaking of the Jews and the Christians alike, the Holy Qur-an says:

And most surely there is a party of them which lie about the Book, that you may consider it to be (a part) of the Book while it is not (a part) of the Book, and they say it is from Allah, while it is not from Allah; and they tell a lie against Allah whilst they know (Ibid, III: 77).

And again:

But on account of their breaking the Covenant, We cursed them and made their hearts hard; they altered the words from their places and they neglected; a portion of what they were reminded of; and you shall always discover treachery in them excepting a few of them; so pardon them and turn away; surely Allah loves those who do good to others.

And with those who say we are Christians, We made a covenant, but they neglected a portion of what they were reminded of; therefore, We excited among them enmity and hatred to the day of resurrection; and Allah will inform them of what they did.

O Followers of the Book! Indeed Our Apostle has come to you, making clear to you much of what you have concealed of the Book, and passing over much; indeed there has come to you light and a clear boon from Allah (The Holy Qur-an V: 13-15).

And finally:

Woe, then to those who write the Book with their own hands and then say: This is from Allah, so that they may take for it a small price; therefore, woe to them for what their hands have written, and woe to them for what they earn (Ibid, II: 79).

JESUS DID NOT DIE ON THE CROSS

There is conclusive proof of the fact that Jesus did not die on the cross. When taken down from the cross he was still alive in a state of unconsciousness. A spear was pierced into his side and blood flowed from his wound which proves that the body was not dead. (John 19:34). Dr. Klausner knows full well that death on the cross was a protracted process and Jesus hung on the cross for too short a time to make his death possible, consequently doubts arose as to the reality of his death. Pilate was astonished that Jesus was so soon dead. Again, Jesus made the prophecy that the sign of the Prophet Jonas would be shown. (Matt. 12:39-40). According to that prophecy Jesus must enter the tomb alive and come out of it alive. Likewise the moving prayers of Jesus to be saved from the accursed death could not go unanswered because he was not the accursed of God. All this proves conclusively he was alive when taken down from the cross and in the tomb. Again, we fully agree with Dr. Klausner that the story of the physical ascension of Jesus to heaven owes its origin to Mary Magdalene. At the same time, the physical appearance of Jesus before his disciples not in vision but actually in "flesh and blood" and His eating with them, prove that he came out of the sepulchre alive in the fulfilment of the prophecy. (Luke 24:39-43).

The next question is: What happened to Jesus and where did he go?

History proves that the lost tribes of Israel lived in Cashmere, India, and in the surrounding states; the recent discovery of the tomb of Jesus with the inscription, Yus Asaf, Jesus the gatherer, (of the lost sheep of Israel) situated at Khan Yar Street, Srinagr, Cashmere, India, solves what has been the enigma of the centuries. Jesus came out of the tomb alive and after making physical appearance before his disciples in disguise lest he should be arrested again, he went to Cashmere, India, where he lived to a ripe old age, and died after finishing his work.

Dr. Klausner draws a parallel between Paul and Muhammed (PP 326-330) in an effort to show that they both were victims of epilepsy, hence their visions and revelations. It must be recalled that all the Jewish Prophets, including Abraham, Moses, Isaiah, Ezekiel and Daniel, the most outstanding spokesman of Yehweh, all saw visions and heard voices. Moses and the burning and Isaiah's ascension to heaven are examples which a Jew can ill-afford to gloss over. All the Jewish Prophets will be considered subject to epilepsy or raving lunatics if the sublime piece of logic be employed as it is done by this erudite modern Jew.

One fails to understand why the parallel is drown between Paul and Muhammed. If Paul was victim of epilepsy, does it follow that Muhammed was also subject to it? Two thieves were hung on the cross with Jesus, does it mean Jesus also was a thief? This reviewer does not find any difficulty even in accepting a true Paul's vision which only called upon him to accept Jesus as a true Prophet of God and the Messiah. The vision had nothing to do with what Paul did late.—(See "The Tomb of Jesus," by Sufi M. R. Bengalee, M. A.).

Review:

Sufi M. R. Bengalee has laid the whole Christian world and indeed all those who value historical and religious truth under a deep debt of obligation by collating together in the attractive little volume under review, the salient points relating to the factum of the escape of Jesus from the humiliating death which his enemies had sought to inflict upon him and his post crucifixion journies and life and the place where he lies buried. I have no doubt that a perusal of this booklet will stimulate the interest of every reader in this fascinating subject so that it may be pursued in the original sources upon which Mr. Bengalee has drawn. This book sets out the material on which it rests in a very attractive and easily readable form which holds one's attention till the end is reached.—SIR MUHAMMAD ZAFRULLA KHAN.

LIFE

Editorial Offices:

November 18, 1946

Dear Mr. Nadji:

Thank you for your letter of October 5, commenting on our illustrated story, "Moslem Prayers," which appeared in the September 30 LIFE.

We were interested to read your discussion of the two points on which you say we did not conform with the facts. We appreciate, too, your enclosure of the magazine, "Islam and Christianity."

Your first point of disagreement is with our statement that Mohammedans compose one-tenth of the world's population. Our source of information was Whitacker's Almanac for 1946, giving the figure for world Mohammedans as 209,020,000 out of a total world population of 1,860,010,000. Contrasting this set of figures with yours, someone must be grossly in error.

Regarding the position of women, we checked with Mr. Katibah of the Institute of Arab American affairs. He said that the Sunna or tradition of women places them in an inferior status, although the written law does not; that women were active in Islam till about the 10th century but the Sunna slowly pushed them into the background.

Our thanks again for your interest in writing.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) Barbara Ballou,
for the Editors.

Note: 94-million Muslims being in India alone as LIFE magazine states, there are about 100 and some millions right in the neighboring countries of India; therefore, the Whitacker's Almanac "must be"—and surely it is—"grossly in error," as even, according to the League of Nations' latest census report the total population of the Islamic world is about 603 millions.

As regards the position of women in Islam, Mr. Katibah of the Institute of Arab American Affairs, is absolutely not well informed. His knowledge on this subject is not deep, and therefore, his information cannot be accepted as true and authentic for many reasons, as if —for instance, in the sight of the civilized nations the seclusion is the main thing that makes the woman become inferior, this is neither Qur-anic nor traditional custom to have been practiced by Sunna.

We can prove that the seclusion or vail is a custom which was practiced centuries before Islam. Its origin is lost in antiquity. It is said to have originated in Iran. The Muslim sought to protect those whom he loved and cherished. It was a custom of almost all civilized people of past centuries to protect themselves against intruders and to lock the doors of their dwelling. And with the high state of civilization and culture existing today, even with bolted doors, the women of the home are molested and the sanctity of the home is violated. For proof of this see any morning or evening paper.

In the Syriac version of the Didascalia Apostolorum supposedly compiled by the Apostles at Jerusalem in the Third century, in the original Greek (English translation by R. Hugh Connally, P. 26), we read: "And when thou walkest in the street (referring to the Christian woman), cover thy head with thy robe, that by reason of thy veil thy great beauty may be hidden. And adorn not they face; but walk with downcast looks, being veiled," And so why criticize Muslims for something the Apostles seems to have started:)

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennett Cerf

"Battleships?" boasted the British tar. "Why matey, our flagship is so big it takes the admiral an hour to cruise around the decks in a limousine."

"So what?" answered the American bluejacket. "The galley of our flagship is so big the cook has to go through the Irish stew in a submarine to see if the potatoes are done!"

After his fourteenth highball, Jackson staggered out of Casey's bar, and crashed headon into the corner lamp-post. Rubbing his forehead sadly, he next topped over the fire hydrant.

Reeling across the sidewalk, he somersaulted down the steps of Mrs. Sullivan's basement and landed in a bloody heap. "Hell with it," he told himself as he curled up for a good sleep. "I might as well stay here 'til the parade passes."

PILES ARE NEVER MID

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever talk of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its let-down tired feeling and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — with a written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or their duties.

Broadway

Miss Midnight's Notebook — Keenan Wynn and Ruth Warrick sighing audibly over Ingrid Bergman's magnificence in "Joan of Lorraine" . . . Newlywed Kathleen Winsor and Artie Shaw making their best of a funny-honeymoon by dinner dating at the Coq Rouge—and then returning to the separate abodes made necessary by the highly confused state of their union . . . William Saroyan, the Brooding Type, looking like a Saroyan character on lower Fifth Ave. . . . Virginia Mayo, the dazzling blonde screen Venus, getting ink on her mink as she signs for movie-mad admirers in the Victorian Room . . . Ginger Rogers, in an ermine coat with military revers, hopping into a glossy limousine on 52nd St. . . . Novelist Fannie Hurst, at Gilmore's, sporting a half-veil with a tiny black felt flower appliqued on it—for practical as well as decorative purposes. It serves to conceal the mark of a bite between the eyes, which she recently suffered when a friend's overexuberant puppy welcomed her.

The Razor's Edge: 20th Century Fox paid for the hauling and bedding down of 76 newspapermen from 43 key cities East of the Rockies who attended last night's premiere of "The Razor's Edge" . . . The sign outside the Roxy (which advertises the film) is so big that Harry Brand's first comment was: "Even Irving Hoffman will be able to see it" . . . Celebrities who were dying to go to the monster clambake were offering $30 a pair for the unobtainable giant gold pasteboards . . . The studio had 40 Pinkertons on hand to supplement the detail of 50 New York policemn. Reporters who asked: "Who is taking Gene Tierney to the premiere?" were told: "A Pinkerton." When they asked: "And who's going with Tyrone Power?" the reply was: "A lady Pinkerton."

Joan of Lorraine: Howard Hughes was so thrilled by Ingrid Berman's playing of "Joan" opening night that he sent her five dozen American Beauty roses. I don't think there was anyone in the audience who would not have liked to do the same . . . The unruliness of the teen-agers at the Bergman premiere, which made it almost impossible for the unusually prompt playgoers to get inside the theater on time, may impel Police Commissioner Wallander to organize a special police squad to handle the juvenile delinquents in the first-night mobs. The plan under discussion would utilize the police with the highest I. Q.'s to handle the situation, which at this point is appalling . . . Shades of Rip Kirby, the comic strip character: a ticket-holder at the Alvin opening reported that he had his pocket picked as he struggled to get into the theater. He was caught up in the mob rushing Myrna Loy.

All Around The Town: A hot rumor from Washington is circulating in Lindy's district. Gen Eisenhower is reported to have told Washington confidantes that authough he would not seek a Presidential bid for 1948, "If I am drafted as a candidate and everything looks good I will be highly honored." I repeat, it's strictly a rumor . . . Louis B. Mayer has at last consented to let Lucille Ball do a play next year. Lucille will head East in search for material after she finishes "Personal Column" . . . Has Susan Bower, the Bergen County "mystery girl," been making the rounds of local theatrical offices in quest of a job, under another name? . . . Business has fallen off in most—of the night clubs, but there are still some heart-of-gold spenders left . A Texan in a 10-gallon hat bought everybody in Armando's a drink and a pack of cigarettes night before last.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, November 26.

THE indications are for a day of little progress, with a recommendation that a course of least resistance be adopted in order to sidestep explosive, indiscreet or erratic situations. The energies and faculties are under high tension and the emotions ready to fly into tantrums, and into avenues of mistake and blunder. Resist all forms of pressure or coercion and keep alert to snares and intrigues. Postpone important changes and alliances until more favorable conditions. Conserve resources and assets. Care for the health.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of difficulties and dangers unless particular effort be made to act with sound reason and not any form of emotional outburst or pressure from others, either peculiar persons or strange situations. Keep to the side of safety and security in all transactions, safeguarding the health, resources, property and family obligations. Postpone major moves or change.

A child born on this day may be erratic, emotional and inclined to a sense of repressional physical limitation or depletion.

Either the sardonyx or peridot are considered birthstones for August.

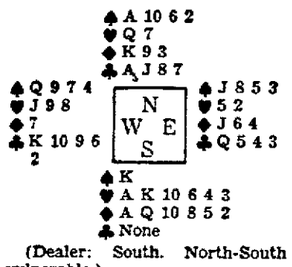
Barclay on Bridge

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

IN CERTAIN unusual situations, it can be sound bridge to jump immediately to a slam, either small or grand, in hearts, diamonds or clubs. The proper circumstances exist when you can see enough playing tricks in sight to make the slam virtually sure, but have extreme shortage in some higher ranking suit, such as a singleton or complete blank. The purpose of the immediate jump is to erect a barrier against a sacrifice in the higher-ranking suit. But there is never any need of such action if your suit is the highest-ranking spades, or if your intention is to place the slam in No Trumps.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
7 NT

It made no difference what West led against that phalanx of trick-takers. Only one factor prevented South from taking 15 tricks—six each in the red suits and three in the black suits—the laws of the game that allow only 13 tricks.

North said after the hand that he was practically knocked off his chair by South's opening bid. He would have been happy enough to hear his partner bid at all, as his cards then would have been enough to virtually assure an easy game for the side. But to hear a game-guarantee two bid from South was indeed sweet music.

"I was practically ready to bid 7-No Trumps the moment I heard him," declared North. "If his bid had been in clubs, I believe I would have jumped to 7-Clubs at once, without any dilly-dallying, to make sure the opponents could not sneak into the bidding and find out they had a good enough heart fit to sacrifice against us. But since No Trumps was the declaration I had in mind, I saw there was no need to hurry. We could always outbid them at any level. So I felt we had plenty of time, and could probe the details for ourselves as thoroughly as we wanted."
